CONSERVATION CORPS members head back to work along the new Soberanes Point Trail following a lunch break. The corps did the physical construction work along the 1.2-mile trail, which will provide the only beach access between Carmel and Big Sur.

New access trail opens coast beach

by Michael Gardner

Ten miles from downtown Carmel along California's scenic Highway 1, the new Soberanes Point Trail inside the recently-acquired Garrapata State Park offers the only public beach access south of Point Lobos and north of Molera State Park in Big Sur, a distance of approximately 20 miles.

Although not officially open to the public until Jan. 15, members of the media and state officials were given a special preview tour of the 1.2-mile trail, which is now being finished by the California Conservation Corps.

During the tour, Ken Jones, manager of the Big Sur area for the California Department of Parks and Recreation, said that the trail became a reality because of unusual cooperation among government agencies.

"We just cut through the fanfare and red tape and got the job done," he said. Government agencies involved in developing the trail included Parks and Recreation, Conservation Corps, State Coastal Conservancy, Coastal Commission and Caltrans.

With State Senator Henry Mello, Fifth District Supervisor William Peters, the media and various state officials in tow, Jones toured the trail with his counterpart with the Coastal Access Program of the coastal commission, Don Neuwirth.

The trail lolls gently toward the coastline, incorporating an old road used before the state bought the property from the Doud Estate. Garrapata Park, encompassing 2,750 acres, was acquired for $1.9 million in early 1980. Officials are hoping to add 300 more acres as negotiations continue with the owners.

As the trail winds toward the ocean, several offshoot paths cut through the ice plant and take visitors closer to the bluffs. Jones said the trails will be moved farther back from the bluffs for safety reasons.

From the 40-foot bluffs, visitors can

Why all the fuss?

Dear Editor:

Although I am not a Carmel resident, I could not help notice all the attention the media has been giving to the subject of a replacement for the vacant city Police Chief's position.

What I cannot understand is what do the good citizens of Carmel fear from outside recruitment? I am certain that the selection panel will take into account Captain Fischer's qualifications in the area of familiarity with Carmel and his past record, and weighing all factors will choose the best qualified person. If it is determined that Captain Fischer is the best qualified, so be it.

I am equally confident that Doug Peterson is well qualified, and having been placed in the position of having to make the decision, why not "get off his back" and let him do his job?

Sincerely,
Sanford S. Veile

Mayor a boor?

Dear Editor:

Every time our genial Mayor Laiolo opens his mouth on the subject of Councilwoman Helen Arnold, he displays an elephantine foot. Perhaps Mr. Laiolo should be clobbered with the same two by four he says he'd like to see someone use on Mrs. Arnold.

Without question, the mayor is entitled to air his differences with the councilwoman. Whatever they are, he should remember that Mrs. Arnold is a lady, and that as mayor, it would be seemly of him to conduct himself as a gentleman.

As far as this voter is concerned, boorishness on the part of a public official never won the day; reasoned argument will.

More than a building

Dear Editor:

The fire which destroyed Carmel High School's pottery building is a story which must be told with much depth and great perception. Lloyd Baskerville, his students, and our community lost much more than just a building.

The far-reaching results of the extra time and love taken by an outstanding teacher to create a place where our students could learn many more things about themselves and self--esteem than an ordinary school might require became evident following the fire:

- By the many people who dropped by the days after the fire just to be with Lloyd and to be sure he was all right and to let him know they cared;
- By the vase with five beautiful roses left the day of the fire on the charred step leading into the burned classroom that was full of so many memories for so many students;
- And by the offers of help and equipment from the people of the community of Carmel and the call from the Monterey School District with an offer of pottery equipment to help get the classes going as soon as possible.

We're proud of Carmel High School, the staff and students, and all those who work so hard to create an atmosphere in which a young mind can open up and develop to its full potential. We're proud of Lloyd Baskerville — one of our many treasures.

Sincerely,
Ken White, President

Candidate for Chief

Dear Editor:

As a resident and a businessman in Carmel, I sincerely hope that City Manager Doug Peterson will resist the pressure to make a hurried decision on the issue of Police Chief. I hope, too, that he will take into consideration how informed the support is for the applicants.

My wife passes daily in and out of the post office, and has heard countless times from petition signers, "Well, I don't know much about it, but if you think so . . ." As an active honorary member of the Monterey County Peace Officers Association, and the owner of a very security dependent business, I have necessarily made myself familiar with the Carmel P.D. and its current personnel, whose feelings would seem obvious from their public silence.

There is a professional, informed body of support for a superb applicant for Carmel Police Chief, Lt. Richard Buvia of the Monterey Police Department. Lt. Buvia was raised and educated in Carmel, at Sunset School and Carmel High. He has served in law enforcement for 23 years, 16 of those on the Peninsula, 12 in the capacity of lieutenant.

He has completed not only those classes offered him, but on his own initiative and at his own expense, has earned a Bachelor's Degree in Administration of Justice, and a Master's Degree in Public Administration. These are credentials I feel essential to a position of such management and fiscal responsibility in today's police department.

Lt. Buvia graduated from the F.B.I. National Academy, where he was selected by his peers to be commencement speaker. He is clearly an exemplary leader who would encourage up-to-date training and high standards.

Besides his police service, his community concern is reflected in positions including president of the board of the Family Resource Center; member of the board of directors of the Monterey Peninsula Host Lions Club; member of the Advisory and Training Staff for the Monterey County Suicide Prevention Center; and program coordinator with Monterey Peninsula Volunteers in Action for Senior Citizen Crime Prevention Courses.

As retired Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, who had — prior to his appointment — been a lieutenant with the Monterey Police Department, Lt. Buvia is not an "outsider."

Lt. Buvia is a man who owes no favors and holds no grudges in Carmel, and has demonstrated his concern for the community, modern police science, and competent administration.

The decision should not be a hasty one. The position of Carmel Police Chief should not be presented as a Christmas present, or awarded in lieu of a gold watch.

Respectfully,
Philip M. Sosna

Corrects misimpression

The following letter was received from Mrs. James A. Moody, publicity chairman for the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the Audubon Society correcting a Pine Cone/ Outlook story of December 10. The story announced that the Society would visit the Palo Alto Baylands to view rails, a bird species. The story said in part "Since rails do not fly, says Moody, they have little choice but to float in on the tide and subject themselves to the scrutiny of birdwatchers."

Dear Editor:

Moody has been misquoted. Of course rails fly. Many species migrate hundreds of miles, flying low at night. However, on their feeding grounds, they prefer to walk or wade on wet mud or along narrow passages through reeds and grasses. I understand that sometimes to escape danger they swim, even under water, but I have never observed this.

At the Palo Alto Baylands, when the tide rises the rails avoid the deepening water by advancing before it on foot, feeding as they move. They do not come 'floating in on the tide.'

Yours sincerely,
Moody

Cites Preamble

Dear Editor:

Your Dec. 10 editorial condemns "the insistence of a council majority that the interests of the residents of Carmel are paramount . . . as a matter of fact, it would seem it is the only thing that matters."

Adopted as Ordinance No. 96, passed by the City Council, the 5th day of June, 1929, and reaffirmed in Nov., 1977, is the Statement of Intent which has come to be known as the Preamble.

"The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is hereby determined to be primarily, essentially and predominantly a residential city wherein business and commerce have in the past, are now, and are proposed to be in the future subordinated to its residential character; and that said determination is made having in mind the history and the development of said city, its growth and the causes thereof; and also its geographical and topographical aspects, together with its near proximity to the cities of Pacific Grove and Monterey, and the businesses, industries, trades, callings and professions in existence and permissible therein."

Councils have come and gone, some heedful of and dedicated to the above statement, others less so. But it has also been patently clear that any member who expressed by his vote support for proposals that did not subordinate business interests to resident interests was apt to be labeled business-oriented or growth-oriented. I should suppose this will always be the case.

It is the Carmel resident who feels he's being "strangled" by business rather than the other way around as you suggest. We feel left out. We can't afford to eat in Carmel restaurants unless we pretend for an evening we're tourists, or celebrating an anniversary. We've even been out-priced on the "Early Bird" specials.

We can go over the hill for much, as the Preamble suggests: we've never wanted or expected department stores here. But should we lose our one and only hardware store, and a few other single sources of needed items, what then? Our ever-increasing property values are not to be attributed to the business district or its commercial interests but to Carmel's residential character.

Visitors who return now after any substantial absence express shock. The resident is depressed and doesn't know what to do but scream "Stop!."

There are, of course, businessmen who live in Carmel, truly appreciate the community, and have cooperated in trying to preserve its peculiar quality. But the resident feels differently from the non-resident businessman who comes into the city for one reason only — to make money.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Milton Mayer

Sees monsters

Dear Editor:

I recently got lost in heavy 2 a.m. fog just past Highway One on Rio Road. As my trusty, 200,000-mile steed coughed to a stall, I looked around to try and get my bearings.

Looking through wisps of floating fog I swear I saw a two-eyed monster! Grabbing a crowbar I stalked forward to do what battle I could. In my confusion and utter fear I bumped into a sign which read "United States Post Office, Carmel Valley Branch"!

On, no! Oh, yes!

Stumbling and swearing, I wandered down the block; oh no! There was another, and another, and unbelievably a third multi-story monster!

As I escaped back into Old Monterey, I passed the Convention Center, Doubletree the Garage Tombs; and mumbled to myself again, "Oh no! Oh, no!"

A freeway is a freeway

By AL EISNER

EVERY ONCE in a while, the subject of a freeway in Hatton Canyon (parallel to Highway 1 between Carpenter and Carmel Valley Road) comes up for discussion. It usually happens when a politician has to creep up or down Carmel Hill during a busy summer or holiday weekend.

Assemblyman Sam Farr came before the Carmel City Council a few weeks ago and said that something really ought to be done about it, since that stretch of highway was now one of the busiest two-lane roads in the state.

The Monterey newspaper, long a champion of a freeway in the canyon, editorialized once again last month in support of a freeway.

Then, finally, the Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee discussed the matter at some length. While they did not reach any conclusion, the panel agreed that something ought to be done, since Carmel was feeling the brunt of the extra traffic created by motorists using Carmel streets to bypass Highway 1.

Freeway proponents speak fondly of a "meandering parkway" that would cause little devastation to the canyon. Mindful that the traffic bottlenecks at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road are hindering large-scale development in Carmel Valley, freeway proponents soft-pedal or fail to mention inescapable facts of life.

I phoned Henry Case, the Caltrans engineer in San Luis Obispo, who is very familiar with the history of the proposed freeway and the problems the proposal has encountered since its inception.

(The entire discussion is almost academic, of course, since the project is way down on the Caltrans priority list. There is no chance of funding in the forseeable future, and with the Reagan-tight budgets, it seems unlikely that it will move up on anyone's priority list for quite a while.)

Mr. Case reiterated what he told me 10 years ago. The dusty plans for Hatton Canyon are for a road built to freeway specifications, and not a "parkway." It would be a limited access road. It would require extensive filling of the canyon — 75 feet deep in some instances — because of the steep grade rise from Carmel Valley Road to Carpenter.

And, it would require construction of a full freeway cloverleaf interchange at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

In other words, we are talking about a freeway — not a "parkway," "roadway" or any other euphemistic phrase for a ribbon of concrete that will help cars and trucks get from Point A to Point B as quickly and efficiently as possible.

When people come back to Carmel after an absence of several years, they decry the changes that have taken place here. When you ask just what changes they mean, they almost invariably point out the mess at the mouth of Carmel Valley caused by the hodge-podge construction of retail stores and office buildings.

What they really are reacting to is the creeping urbanization of the area. Carmel Rancho Center is built on what used to be a dairy ranch. The terrible planning by the county that resulted in the situation we have down there now has few adherents. Under the strict new zoning laws and with a watchful citizenry, it could never be repeated.

Yet, people are seriously discussing construction of a freeway — the ultimate symbol of urbanization. Can you imagine what the intersection of Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road would look like with a cloverleaf interchange, complete with underpasses, overpasses, and heaven-knows what else?

The recently-installed traffic signals on Rio Road have caused grumbling among motorists. The increased traffic burden would undoubtedly require installation of many more traffic lights.

Now, maybe — just maybe — increased development in Carmel Valley will force relief. (The planners assume that commuting habits will remain the same, and that there won't be a shift towards use of public transit.)

If we are finally faced with the need to build a freeway, let's be sure we know what we're talking about. To paraphrase Gertrude Stein: "A freeway is a freeway is a freeway."

Committee member replies to editorial:

The following is a response to the Pine Cone editorial in the edition of Dec. 10, on the subject of the General Plan revision and the composition of the committee that is trying to deal with the revision. The writer is John Logan, a member of the Carmel Planning Commission and a member of the general plan revision committee. The excerpts from the editorial were chosen by Mr. Logan.

PINE CONE: ". . . The interests of the residents of Carmel are intertwined with the interests of the business community. A healthy business district is essential for the well-being of the residential district. . ."
LOGAN: No argument, I agree entirely with those statements.

PINE CONE: ". . . The apparent stalemate on the revision of the General Plan is due to the constant bickering on the council and the insistence of a council majority that the interests of the residents of Carmel are paramount . . . as a matter of fact, it would seem it is the only thing that matters. . ."
LOGAN: I disagree violently against your position! There is no "stalemate" whatsoever. There is, instead, a strong feeling that the contractor may have given Carmel a poor job.

PINE CONE: ". . . Why is Doud frustrated? Because he is well aware that the majority of the members of the Council will heed only the voices of residents of Carmel. . ."
LOGAN: Is this bad?

PINE CONE: ". . . Yet, Doud and other responsible businessmen are apparently going to be systematically excluded from taking part in the formulation of a new General Plan that will guide the direction the city is going to take in the forseeable future.

The reason? They are businesspeople, and not residents. Phooey! Does Doud love Carmel any less than others because he owns commercial propery downtown?

The expertise of hundreds of seasoned businesspeople who could make a significant contribution to the general plan process is being scorned. The decisions will then be made, apparently, by a group of well-meaning amateurs who are willing to make long-winded speeches about the need to 'save Carmel,' but who don't have the faintest notion of how to achieve that laudable goal.

I guess membership on the committee will be open only to those persons willing to swear a secret oath to do all they can to strangle the business district in the mistaken belief that this will in some vague way, help preserve Carmel.
LOGAN: ". . . responsible businessmen . . . to be systematically excluded . . ." NO! NO! NO! You are dead wrong! The mayor announced the rules time after time, and you yourself printed them in your paper.

In spite of the announcements in the Pine Cone, not one businessman in Carmel volunteered to serve on the General Plan advisory committee!

I happen to believe that that condition is too bad for the city. But in fact, only 13 "well-meaning amateurs" volunteered for the job and I salute each one. Such "well-meaning amateurs" are going to run this city, and I am pleased. Do you disagree?

PINE CONE: ". . . If we are ever going to rid ourselves of the impotent, ineffective people who have a majority vote on our city council now, it will be when people with broader perspective agree to run for office. . ."
LOGAN: I distrust statements like this; ". . . people with broader perspective . . ." usually refers to ". . . people who agree with me . . ."

PINE CONE: ". . . Maybe the most positive thing the Carmel Business Association could do within the next couple of months is buy a couple of houses (or maybe even just rent them) for some worthy people who might agree to campaign for a seat on the city council . . ."

LOGAN: An excellent suggestion! Be it through CBA rentals or otherwise. Let's get such people as David Hagemeyer, Ann Clothier, Ted Leidig, Toland Doud and Virginia Williams to move back into Carmel and run for office. They know the city upside down and backwards, and each is smart as hell.

And how about the editor of the Pine Cone himself? It's your suggestion. Will you become a resident of Carmel and run for the council, or will you prefer to live outside and yap at us?

But stalls on final erosion solution:

City acts to protect cypress trees

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CITY of Carmel will apply an immediate "band-aid" to the beach erosion problem and perform major surgery later.

The City Council decided Tuesday to reinforce three cypress trees near 12th Avenue threatened with destruction because of erosion damage to their root systems.

The council directed city staff to work with a landscape engineer to design and install rock reinforcements for the three trees for less than $5,000 so that city crews could be used. Any project of $5,000 or more must be performed through a competitive bid process.

Council members will consider three long-range suggestions by structural engineer Jon Raggett for control of bank erosion along the beach between 10th and 11th Avenues below Scenic as part of a comprehensive beach management program they hope to devise before next winter.

Estimated cost of those three alternatives is between $70,000 and $112,000.

Councilman Howard Brunn said he felt the protection of the three trees should be an immediate priority, to be followed by development of a comprehensive beach management program later. Brunn sat as mayor pro tem because Mayor Barney Laiolo was absent due to illness.

"I'd like to see if there's a middle ground we could take in the area where the erosion is not so serious — near the area of 12th Street where we're faced with the possible loss of three cypress trees.

"I recommend that a landscape architect be retained to establish some sort of policy so that any other area of the beach that has a problem is addressed by a policy. This part can be done by the city for under $5,000 and we can do the rest later in a workmanlike manner, if there is a way to put a 'band-aid' on it now."

Raggett presented the council with a four-page outline of beach erosion control measures for a 234-foot stretch of embankment between 10th and 11th. An irregularly-placed rock wall to control erosion would cost $70,000, Raggett said.

A concrete retaining wall with rock facing would cost around $112,000, and a combination of the irregular rock wall and the concrete wall would cost about $81,000 Raggett estimated.

"The most viable solution to the bank erosion problem would be construction of a wall at the base of the bank which would retain the soil embankment and protect the bank," Raggett said.

"During heavy winter storms, the beach sand is washed out to sea leaving the bank unprotected. Waves break on the sandstone bedrock west of the bank and the wash from the waves follows a generally semi-circular motion in its return to the sea.

"AS THE WASH accumulates at the base of the bank it proceeds in a southerly direction, paralleling the bank, and returns to the sea near the south end of the bank.

"The motion of the wave creates a scouring action which erodes the bank. If erosion is permitted to continue, three groups of large cypress trees at the north end of the bank will be endangered. Erosion has caused the collapse of the concrete walkway leading from Scenic Road to the beach.

"Storm water runoff from Scenic Road has also added to the bank erosion problem. Continued erosion of the bank will not only cause the loss of the cypress trees but will threaten to undermine Scenic Road," Raggett advised the council.

In a separate but related matter, City Administrator Doug Peterson reported that he was unable to recommend the hiring of a designer for a proposed beach walkway, but promised to have a recommendation for the council at the first meeting in January.

The proposed beach walkway is intended indirectly to reduce bank erosion by providing pedestrians with a paved pathway, so as to discourage climbing over the banks. It would not provide a total solution to the problem of beach and bank erosion, as Forestry Commission chairman Smith pointed out.

"The original problem wasn't the beach walk," Smith said. "It was preservation of the beach wall. I don't think the beach walk will solve all the problems of the beach."

Raggett suggested as an immediate step that some type of rock be placed around the base of the threatened cypress trees.

Councilman Frank Lloyd wanted to know if sandbags could be used to stabilize the root area of the trees and Raggett replied: "That's what the rocks would do."

Matt Smith, chairman of the Forestry Commission, praised the council for taking initial steps toward erosion control, and urged that any immediate measures be included as part of a "master plan" for the beach.

EXPOSED tree roots in the beach area between 10th and 11th along Scenic, and the sharp slope of the hillside, may be buttressed by erosion-control methods proposed by the city engineer.

HUMAN activity, such as crawling and climbing on the banks which lead down from Scenic Drive to the beach, combine with the natural effects of wind and sea to cause severe erosion.

Court to hear plea for EIR at CV Ranch intersection

HEARING on a peremptory writ of mandate to force preparation of an environmental impact report on the Robinson Canyon-Carmel Valley Road intersection is set for Dec. 31 in Monterey County Superior Court.

The hearing follows Judge Richard Silver's issuance of an alternative writ of mandate Nov. 15 in response to a lawsuit filed by Carmel Valley attorneys Zan Henson and Richard Rosenthal.

The petition asks the court to order the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to have an EIR prepared before reconstruction of the intersection proceeds. The project is a vital link to further development of Carmel Valley Ranch and is timed for construction to begin immediately after completion of the first 160 housing units.

The lawsuit asks the court to order the Board of Supervisors to amend the circulation element of the county's general plan, the Carmel Valley Master Plan, or the Carmel Valley Ranch specific plan before approval is given for the project.

The court is also asked to order the supervisors to determine whether the intersection is consistent with the county general plan.

Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos said he will argue that the petition which challenges the intersection was filed too late. The project was approved by supervisors Aug. 18 with a declaration of negative environmental impact.

The notice of determination of negative environmental effect was filed with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors Oct. 1, so the 30-day appeal period expired Nov. 1, Ramos said. The Henson-Rosenthal lawsuit was filed Nov. 15.

"We will also argue that the matter of the intersection has been discussed many times and has been subject to public scrutiny on many occasions," Ramos said. "I think the intersection has been found consistent with the county general plan and with the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

"The intersection was covered in the EIR prepared for the Carmel Valley Ranch project," he added.

Carmel Valley Ranch recently received approval for another 91 units of housing. Landmark Lands — developer of the project — already has received approval for 140 townhouses, a tennis club, golf course, and clubhouse.

The developer has supplied the county with a $3.2 million letter of credit to finance reconstruction of the intersection. Ramos has said conditions attached to the project would insure that construction starts not later than June of 1982.

Public bus service to be increased in Carmel

BUS SERVICE to downtown Carmel will be stepped up Feb. 27 in response to increased demand, says Monterey-Salinas Transit manager Tom Albert.

On that date, buses will depart from Sixth and Mission for Monterey every 15 minutes during peak weekday demand periods, instead of every half-hour. Buses will run every 15 minutes all day Saturday as of Feb. 27.

The 15-minute service will be available from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 2:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays.

The increased service should make travel between Monterey and Carmel easier for riders, and may even help relieve traffic and parking congestion in Carmel, Albert told the Dec. 3 breakfast meeting of the Carmel Business Association.

Albert suggested that Carmel merchants subsidize $18 monthly bus passes for employees as an incentive to leave their cars at home. Merchants could purchase the passes and then sell them to employees at a reduced price, Albert said.

CBA president Paul Allen said the organization has no plans to become involved in promotion of the subsidized bus passes, but individual merchants may wish to offer them to employees.

Albert said the CBA members present at the breakfast meeting at La Playa "didn't exactly knock me over with their $18" when he proposed the idea. But he said he wanted to suggest the notion in advance to give merchants time to think about it before the new service starts.

County acts to halt siltation problems

MONTEREY COUNTY now has an erosion control ordinance designed to prevent just the kind of slide which recently deposited tons of siltation from Merv Griffin's vineyard in Hitchcock Canyon on neighbors' property in Carmel Valley.

The new measure was adopted by the Board of Supervisors Dec. 8 and takes effect Jan. 8, 1982. It's the result of two years of work by the county building inspector's office.

The ordinance requires submission and approval of an erosion control plan before the county issues a building, grading, or land clearing permit for areas prone to erosion.

Enforcement of the ordinance rests with the director of building inspection; violations may be punished by fines up to $250 for each separate offense. In addition, the building inspector's office may issue stop-work orders to halt any type of work not in compliance with the ordinance until an erosion control plan has been filed.

Supervisors approved the ordinance approximately two weeks after winter rains triggered erosion at Merv Griffin's vineyard in Carmel Valley which deposited an estimated 10 cubic feet of sludge on neighbor Art Wagar's property.

The Griffin vineyard project was started before the county required issuance of an erosion control plan, and Griffin was advised about potential erosion problems on his property by the country on Nov. 3.

Some erosion control measures were underway by the vineyard contractor — but were incomplete—at the time of last month's slide.

"If we'd had this ordinance sooner, it would have prevented that operation (Griffin's vineyard) from being built," said county building inspector William Clark. "That is a typical thing this would stop.

"Basically, the ordinance gives the county control that says you've got to have a plan to control the erosion, and you've got to have competent people to design a plan for erosion control."

When the Board of Supervisors adopted the ordinance, it also budgeted $50,000 for personnel and equipment for enforcement. The funds will be used to hire an engineering technician, purchase a vehicle and related equipment, Clark said.

The technician will be charged primarily with inspection and enforcement, and those efforts will be backed up by other county building inspectors in the normal course of their duties, he added.

"We hope to have one person who works directly on enforcement and to use all the rest of the forces in building inspection to attack the problem," Clark said. "We will have to watch any place where there is a steep hillside, including Palo Colorado and the Big Sur coast."

IN A SEPARATE but related development, the county building inspector and the California Department of Forestry obtained a temporary restraining order Dec. 4 to halt a timber harvest in Big Sur which allegedly caused siltation flow into the Little Sur River.

The restraining order stops timber harvesting by David Doolaege in the Little Sur drainage area and orders that cleanup, erosion control and slope stabilization work be completed prior to resumption of harvesting.

The case was taken to Monterey County Superior Court by the Attorney General's office, since there was no county regulation to control erosion in effect at the time, Clark said. The action alleged that Doolaege failed to follow his approved timber harvest plan.

California Department of Forestry inspectors discovered the problems on the Doolaege property during a routine inspection June 30. They filed a misdemeanor complaint against Doolaege July 22 for operating without a timber harvester's license and for failure to file a fire plan.

"Subsequent administrative efforts to gain correction of these problems and compliance with erosion control methods were only partially successful," said David Soho, CDF resource manager in Monterey.

California Department of Fish and Game officials investigated whether the steelhead spawning ground in the Little Sur River might have been damaged by the siltation.

"The problem was about a mile or two upstream of the mouth of the Little Sur River," said warden Wayne Howe. "We've been on it for about a week, and we don't know yet whether there has been a fishkill or whether it wiped out the spawning ground."

Howe said he had been advised by Monterey County District Attorney William Curtis not to discuss details of the investigation because of heavy publicity given the recent fishkill below the Los Padres dam on the upper Carmel River.

Commission to see Piccadilly plans

FINAL PLANS to landscape Piccadilly Park are to go before the Carmel Forestry Commission at 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 29 in City Hall.

Once the plans receive the blessings of the Forestry Commission, they will be forwarded to the City Council for final approval. The 40-by-80-foot parcel on Dolores between Ocean and 7th was purchased by the city for $400,000.

The plans will delete the use of adjacent property owned by Mary Lou Linhart and her brother George Linsley, located behind the Merry Loom on Dolores Street.

Instead, the park design includes a straight stone wall "a couple of feet high" to separate the properties, on top of which would be a wooden fence, Andrews said.

Wooden park benches to seat 15 persons line the wall on the north side of the park, and bench seating for another six persons would be located in the front of the park, Andrews said.

A potential drainage problem will be solved by a raised gradient in the southwest corner, where a fountain would be installed, and installation of a retaining wall. The slope would match that of the property adjacent to the Merry Loom, Andrews said.

"We might put in a pump for emergency situations," Andrews explained. "The grade would direct some of the drainage into the street, but there's already a natural flow across her (Mrs. Linhart's) property."

Andrews said he hopes to include a park lighting system which could be activated through remote control by police cruisers in the area. The fence at the entrance to the park would be a "split-rail, Carmel-type" fence, he added.

Trees and shrubs to be planted would all be native and drought-resistant plants. The city has budgeted $75,000 for the design and landscaping of the 4,000 sq. ft. park.

Cal-Am to finish pipeline work in CV this week

CALIFORNIA-American Water Co. said installation of a new water pipeline along Carmel Valley Road should be completed this week.

The enlarged pipeline was installed as part of a $5.5 million program of well installation in Carmel Valley to increase water production capacity to 22,000 acre feet per year, said Cal-Am vice president Richard Sullivan.

Most traffic disruption on Carmel Valley Road associated with the pipeline installation should be eliminated by this week, Sullivan said.

The new pipeline is to handle increased water flow from the four new wells to the Begonia Iron Removal Plant and it covers a five-mile stretch of the Valley.

Two of the four new Carmel Valley wells have been completed, but neither is in service, Sullivan said. They will be pumped to supply additional water during high demand periods and will not necessarily operate year-round.

"They will be used depending on demand," Sullivan said. "We'll decide when to operate them by our complete monitoring of our system. Most of the wells are automatically activated."

General Plan panel twists in the wind

By ROBERT MISKIMON

WILL THE new Carmel general plan make a sow's ear out of a silk purse?

That possibility served to focus the minds of the General Plan Advisory Committee as it convened in a special session last Wednesday in city hall.

The group expressed frustration about its apparent inability to come to grips with the central issues in the general plan; its relationship with the general plan consultant, and with rumors the City Council might dissolve the committee.

Once again the panel launched into a broad discussion of key general plan issues such as traffic, parking, and the character of the residential and business districts. However, this time a let's-get-down-to-business attitude was evident.

"We might be dissolved by the City Council," committee member Jean Grace told her colleagues. "This is one of the things that has been discussed in the back rooms."

But City Administrator Doug Peterson assured the committee that no such action had been considered officially by the council.

"I haven't heard any discussion among the City Council as a body about disbanding this committee," Peterson said. The council was to consider several of Peterson's recommendations to improve the general plan process at Tuesday's meeting — including the possibility of allowing the committee to vote.

"This committee is to mirror the interests of the community to the consultant," Peterson said. "They are then to present alternative suggestions to achieve these things. Everyone is involved in the variety of these tasks. The consultant will not provide solutions — some suggestions, yes."

Committee member Les Gross said the group ought to spend an entire evening just on the issues of traffic and circulation as they relate to the general plan. He urged the committee to be more specific in its recommendations.

"Traffic comes first and land use comes later," Gross said. "At the present time we have 3,000 workers in Carmel. Should the city seek ways to limit vehicular traffic in Carmel?"

The committee flirted with the long-controversial Hatton Canyon Freeway project, and split on the issue. Committee member Gene Hammond said he is "very much in favor" of the roadway, and said it might be the only solution to the traffic and parking problems in Carmel.

Committee members Gordon Campbell and Dorothy Lillard also voiced support for the project, but Dr. Donald Davidson said he had "no comment" while Jane Mayor said she was undecided.

PLANNING Director Robert Griggs said the project actually would be more of a "parkway" than a "freeway" since there would be limited access and low speed traffic on the two-mile roadway. It would resemble the stretch of Highway 1 between Carmel and Monterey, he said.

"It's a $17 million project but not all the design work has been completed yet," Griggs said. "To complete it would require contributions from people wanting to develop land and probably from the county."

The project would involve construction of a four-lane highway from the Highway 1-Carpenter Street intersection to the Carmel River near the mouth of the Valley.

Although the State Department of Transportation has purchased the right-of-way for the project, it has been assigned a low priority by the state because of tight finances and because of the lack of a clear community consensus for its construction, the committee was informed in a prior meeting.

Hammond said the city should explore the possibility of leasing the state-owned right-of-way to construct a major parking facility to relieve parking pressures in Carmel, if the freeway is not built.

"A lot of our problems are caused by traffic coming through Carmel to avoid Highway 1," Hammond said. "The solution is getting these people out of their cars and finding some other way to get them into town.

"The problem of intrusion of employee parking into the residential area is something we ought to consider. However, I would be totally opposed to the city spending money for a parking garage at Sunset Center."

Davidson said he felt the role of the committee should be to define broad issues which need to be addressed in the updated general plan, and not to propose specific solutions.

"We're acting as if we're the legislative body, and we shouldn't," Davidson said. "I've heard us get estranged over an issue such as one-way streets. Whether they're one-way streets is up to the council."

"I think we're here to pose the questions that are vital," said Jane Mayor. "These are basic concerns."

Les Gross read off a list of questions related to traffic which he said the group ought to consider:

- Should the city require on-site parking for employees of new commercial development?
- Should parking facilities be provided by the city for business employees or commercial property owners?
- Should the in-lieu parking fee be eliminated and replaced by a parking assessment district encompassing the entire business district?
- Should the city limit or encourage more tourist-oriented business in Carmel?
- Should the city increase the number of its 20-minute parking zones to benefit Carmel residents?

DAVIDSON said he felt the city should limit its efforts to provide more parking to the use of residents.

"I think anyone who wants to encourage tourist-oriented businesses should have their tongue sliced off," Dr. Davidson said. "We have been a little unrealistic in our approach to in-lieu fees.

"They could be used for the construction of a parking facility. I don't know what else in the world they'd be used for."

"If you took all the money collected over the years (from in-lieu fees) it would only cover 20 percent of the parking spaces lost," Gross said. "How can you expect the residents of Carmel to mortgage their homes to pay for a facility they won't use?"

Davidson suggested that a three-level parking structure could have two levels designated for employee parking and one for residential parking. The facility could be leased to a commercial enterprise to generate revenues to retire the construction bonds, Davidson said.

"A three-story structure at most would double the amount of parking we have at Sunset now," Hammond said. "It wouldn't have any appreciable effect on parking in the peripheral areas."

Gross said he wanted to set the record straight that he is not "anti-business" despite his opposition to construction of parking facilities.

"It always seems like I'm being called 'anti-business' but I'm not," he said.

Alan Williams, an alternate committee member, suggested the possibility of stickers on residents' cars to enable them to park overtime in city parking spots.

"If we're honest with ourselves, we don't need to provide any more parking for tourists," Williams said.

New Sanitary District board members to be seated

TWO NEW members of the Board of Directors of the Carmel Sanitary District will be seated today (Dec. 17).

John Floyd and David Tedrow will begin their four-year terms of office when the board meets at 1:30 p.m. in Carmel City Hall. They replace James Pruitt and Vernon Head.

The board is also to elect officers for 1982 — a president, president pro tem, secretary and secretary pro tem.

In other business, the board will hear a report on the recently-completed study of ground water quality in Carmel Valley presented by representatives of Montgomery Engineers.

District manager Michael Zambory will brief the board on the status of the planned $13.7 million water reclamation project and related contracts to sell treated waste water to golf courses in Pebble Beach.

Dam alternatives are thrashed out

WATER reclamation, off-channel reservoirs, underground storage and aquifer linkage are but a few of the alternatives to another dam on the Carmel River.

Three water experts outlined the possibilities last Thursday before the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula.

They were Robert Curry, hydrogeologist at the University of California, Santa Cruz; John Logan, hydrologist and Carmel Planning Commission member; and Michael Zambory, manager of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Both Curry and Logan have served as consultants to the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

"There are a large number of alternatives here locally," Curry told the group. "You can work toward a distributed system to link several aquifers together instead of a centralized system of water production.

"The political and social considerations with water are very much the same as with energy," Curry said.

Logan predicted that voters of the Monterey Peninsula wouldn't approve even a small dam — on the order of 20,000 acre feet of storage capacity — once all the costs are known. Costs of replacing old California-American Water Co. pipes to accommodate the increased water supply could double the price of another dam, Logan said.

"Cal-Am's delivery capability is 20,000 ac. ft. per year now," Logan said. "For Cal-Am to remodel its delivery system to handle the additional 20,000 ac. ft. per year might cost as much as the dam itself.

"Cal-Am will not be able to provide the additional water without a new pipeline, and the cost of that would be a fortune — millions and millions."

One more alternative to another dam on the upper Carmel River is underground storage in Seaside of winter storm runoff from the Carmel River, Logan said. Logan was to start a test of the effectiveness of underground injection wells in Seaside this week.

It has been estimated that such a recharge scheme could increase the system-wide production capacity of Cal-Am by 1,700 ac. ft. per year.

The Carmel Sanitary District $13.7 million water reclamation project now in the planning stage could conserve 1,000 ac. ft. per year of potable water used to irrigate golf courses in Pebble Beach, said Carmel Sanitary District manager Michael Zambory.

A market for the tertiary-treated water exists nearby because of the many golf courses; several may contract to use the reclaimed water when the system becomes operational in 1985 — provided federal grant monies don't dry up, he said.

Cost of the reclaimed water will be based on the capital improvement and annual maintenance and operations cost of the sanitary district, and should be less than the cost of Cal-Am water, Zambory said.

"We'd sell 1,000 ac. ft. per year, so in effect we're conserving 1,000 ac. ft. per year," he said.

Curry said the Carmel Valley aquifer could be used also for additional storage, provided "we sewer the homes in the areas we are going to use for recharge." In response to a question on the health of the Carmel River, Curry replied:

"The Carmel River is in rather serious trouble right now. The sediment and water equilibrium is rather mixed up. But I'm reasonably certain that within a 20-year period, after an integrated management system is implemented, the river can be returned to some level of manageable health."

The panel discussion was preceded by a "water tasting," in which 10 samples of water from the Monterey Peninsula, other locations in California, and France were rated by participants for taste.

Thirty-five volunteers ranked the water from France at the top of the list. The other water samples, in descending order were: Seaside water second; Lake County water, third and fourth; Carmel Water West Co. water, fifth; Cal-Am Carmel Valley water, sixth; Black Mountain spring water, seventh; Cal-Am Carmel water, eighth; Fort Ord water, ninth; downtown Monterey Cal-Am water, tenth.

IRA: TAX SAVINGS YOU CAN RETIRE ON.

A WELLS FARGO PERSONAL BANKER™ WILL SHOW YOU HOW TO DO IT.

Wells Fargo has been helping people save for retirement for a hundred and thirty years. We've been offering Individual Retirement Accounts since their authorization by Congress. We offer five Individual Retirement options. Plus a Personal Banker to help you choose the right one.

A retirement plan for everyone who works.

Under new Federal tax laws, beginning in 1982, virtually everyone who works will be able to deposit up to $2,000 a year into an IRA ($4,000 for couples who work) and defer paying taxes on the money until it is withdrawn. Even if you're already covered by another retirement plan. The interest this money earns is also not taxed until you start to withdraw your funds. You'll be able to turn continuing tax savings into an independent nest egg that's yours even if you change jobs, change careers, or move to another state.

Your own tax shelter now.

IRA deposits are tax deductible from your current income. This means you can lower the amount of taxes you pay each year that you make contributions to your IRA. For example, if you're in a 35% tax bracket, you save $700 in current taxes every year you deposit $2,000 to your IRA.

A retirement nest egg later.

The interest your IRA earns is also not taxed until you withdraw your funds. You can withdraw funds in a lump sum, or over a monthly or quarterly payment schedule. You determine the amount of the payments, within IRS guidelines. Since your tax bracket will probably be lower then, your taxes should be less.

How an IRA Grows and Saves You Taxes

Assumption: If you invest $2,000 each year at 12% on January 1 until you retire at age 65, here's what your nest egg would amount to:

Your Age Today	IRA Total At Year End At Age 65*	Comparable Total of a Taxable Investment If Your Marginal Tax Rate Is
		20%	35%	50%
25	$2,130,062	$842,624	$409,462	$191,765
35	629,328	308,088	175,003	95,224
45	177,227	105,674	69,236	43,180
55	41,030	29,025	21,524	15,124

*IRA funds are subject to ordinary income taxes when received.

Five different investment options.

Wells Fargo offers a choice of five Individual Retirement options. They range from one that guarantees the starting interest rate on each deposit until you reach age 60, to options offering money market rates at different maturities. You can transfer from one plan to another as your deposits mature. And each account is insured up to $100,000 by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. And there are substantial penalties for early withdrawal. Your nearest Wells Fargo Bank has full details.

It's in your interest to invest now.

There can be a distinct financial advantage to investing in a Wells Fargo IRA now, instead of waiting until later in the year. If, for example, you invested $2,000 annually at 12% each January 1 instead of waiting until December 31, over the next twenty-five years, the difference in your earnings would amount to more than $38,000.

A Personal Banker can help you choose.

Above all, your retirement investment is a personal decision. We feel it should be given personal attention. Your nearest Wells Fargo Bank has a financial professional who can provide exactly that. A Wells Fargo Personal Banker, who's thoroughly versed in the complexities of IRA regulations. Your Personal Banker can show you how an Individual Retirement Account can be part of your personal retirement planning, and prepare an IRA BENEFIT ANALYSIS for you, free of charge. We want your retirement choice to be an informed choice.

It takes a bank with a past to anticipate the future.

Wells Fargo has been helping people save for the future longer than any other bank in California. We've survived every economic fluctuation over the last hundred and thirty years. When you commit your financial future to us, you know you're going to get a comparable commitment in return. That means not only quality service, but the advantage of a full range of banking services from a 23 billion dollar bank. And the comforting knowledge that you know we won't be retiring even when you do.

That's the kind of retirement plan that lets you look ahead with confidence.

watch the waves slam against the rocks westward. To the east, rolling hills painted green by the recent rains invite atmosphere photos; while southward stretches the majestic, one of a kind, California coast.

The entourage proceeded toward the small, rocky Garrapata Beach. A red-tailed hawk circled above. In the western distance, seals barked and sea gulls cried as they searched for an afternoon snack.

At one point, the group passed through what was once an 18-inch passage along a hill that sloped down to the ocean. Conservation Corps members widened the trail and built a fence as a safety precaution.

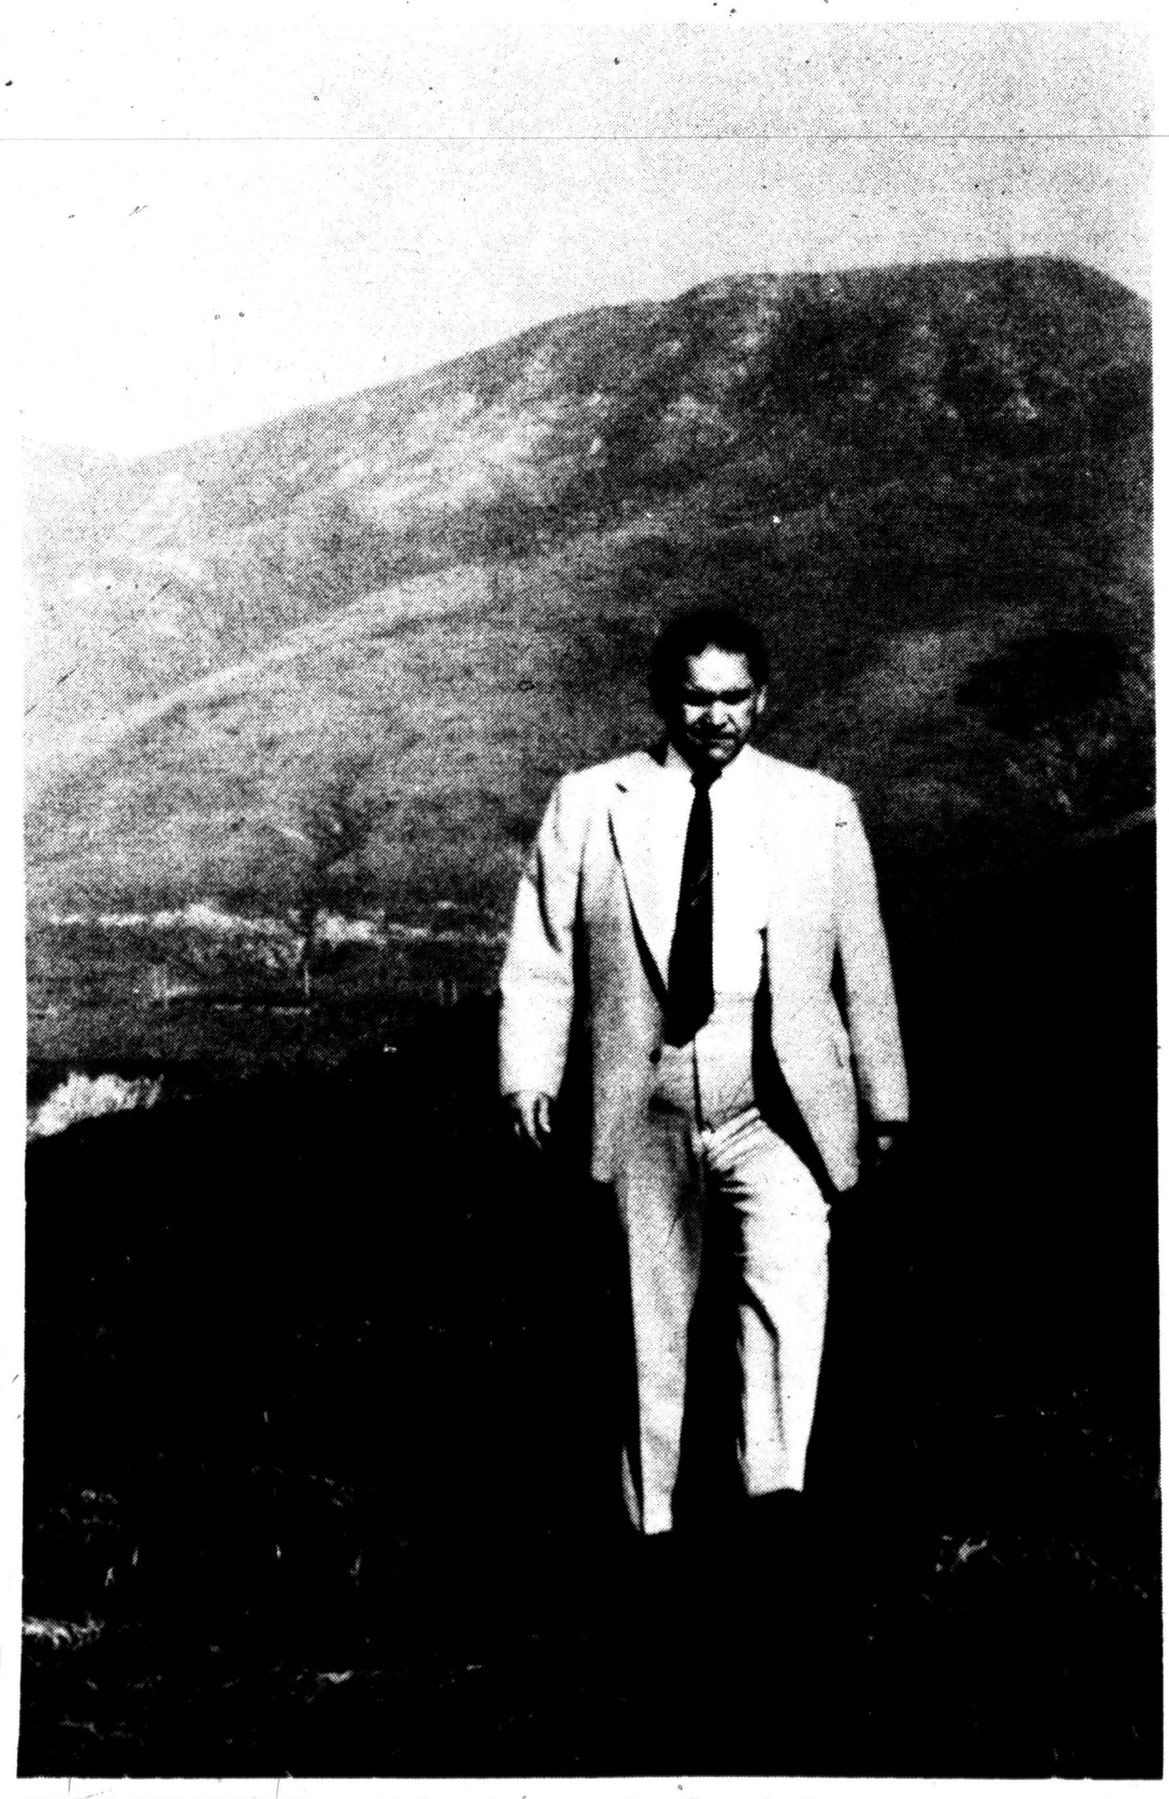
Jones explained that eventually he would like to see the trail expanded to four miles so visitors could hike from the north end of Garrapata State Park to the south point.

He added that picnicking facilities along the current trail may be added in the future.

Jones explained that "with very little effort" the 1.2-mile stretch could be made accessible to the handicapped.

After walking through the three lateral loops — each giving a different perspective of the coast — the entourage headed back to the gate, but unanimously voiced their desire to return Jan. 15.

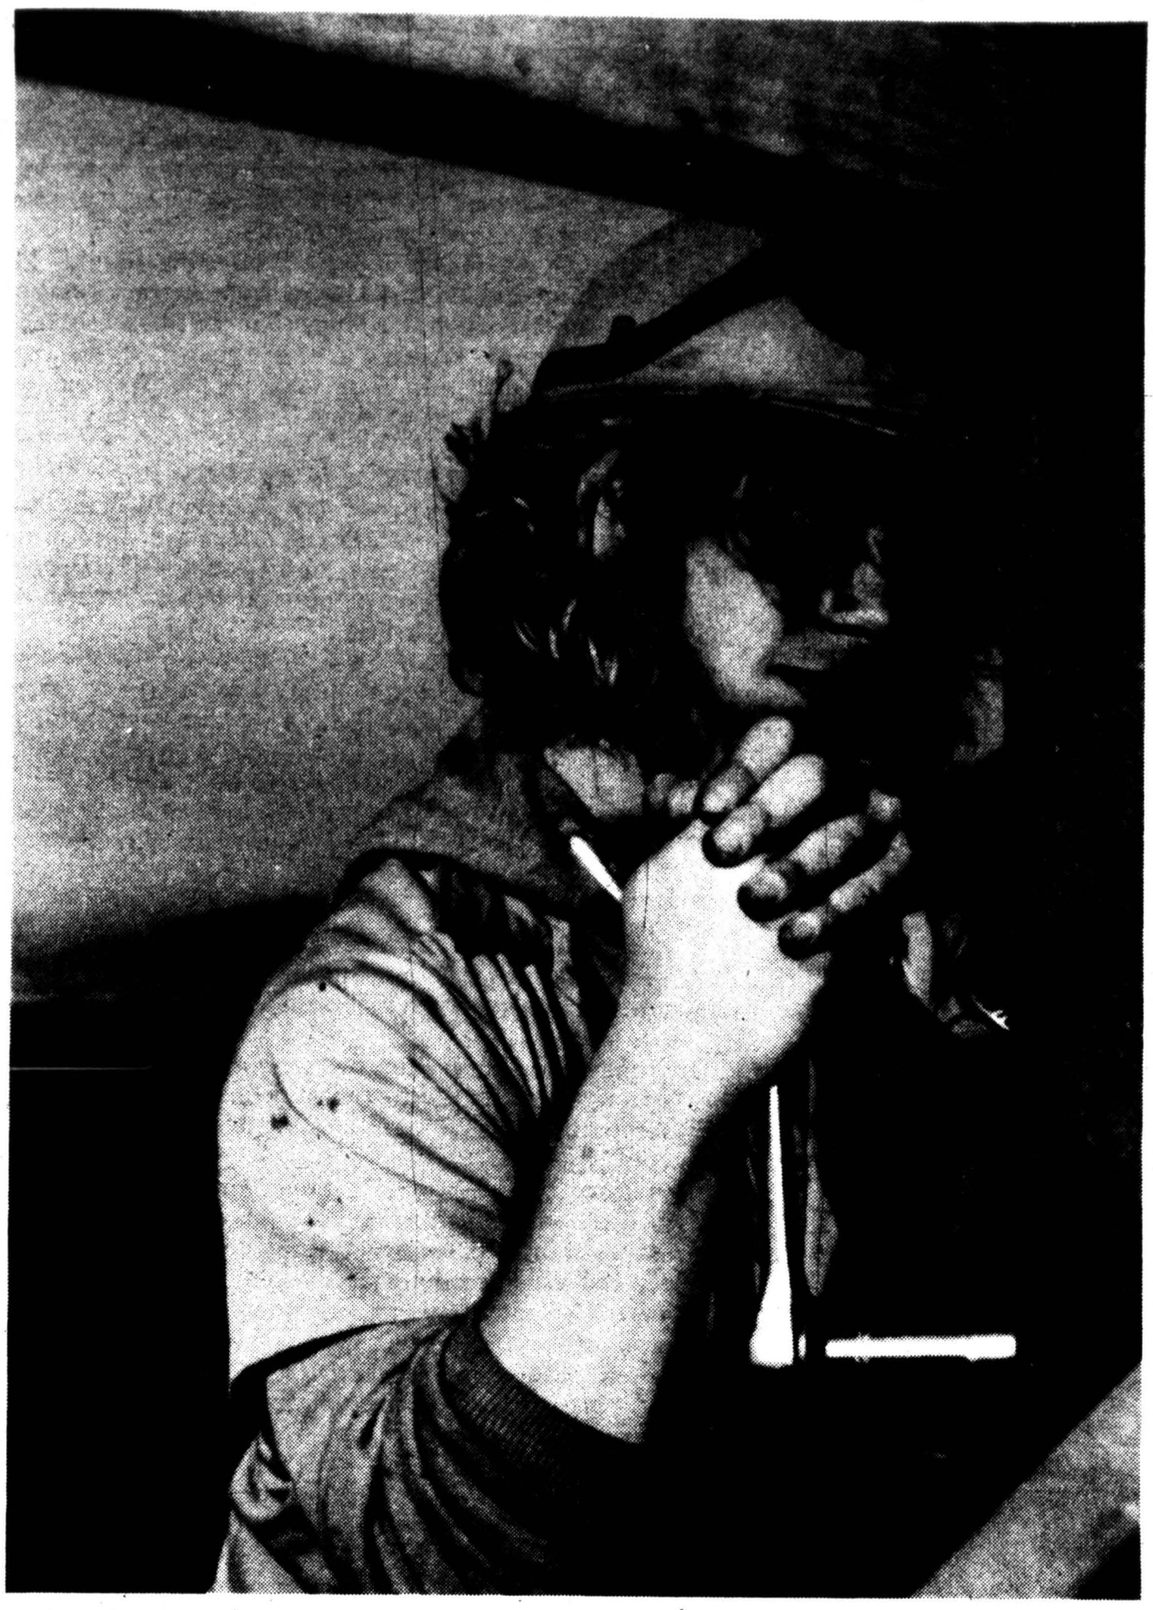
As Peters said at the end of the walk: "It must seem like you died and went to heaven."



STATE SENATOR Henry Mello enjoys a stroll along the trail, a far cry from the hectic pace of Sacramento. Mello is a member of the Coastal Conservancy Board, which helped acquire funds for the trail and Garrapata State Park.

A SIGN NEAR Soberanes Point Trail awaits installation by the California Conservation Corps. The trail will be completed and open to the public Jan. 15.

KEN JONES, manager of the Big Sur area for the California Department of Parks and Recreation, points out work done by the conservation corps to Fifth District Supervisor William Peters during Monday's tour of Soberanes Point Trail.



JERRY SMITH of the California Conservation Corps works on a fence that serves as a safety barrier for pedestrians. Before construction of the fence, the trail was a narrow 18-inches along a hillside sloping down toward the ocean.

WAVES CRASHING against the rocks — a familiar sight at Point Lobos and equally spectacular along the Soberanes Point Trail.

The Westons keep clicking!

By FLORENCE MASON

THE THREE GENERATION GALLERY — that says it all! Three generations of Westons — Edward, Cole and Kim — will be represented in a new photography gallery opening next Sunday, Dec. 20, with an open house to which all are invited. It is in the Barnyard, below the Thunderbird Book Store.

According to Cole Weston, he and his son, Kim, wanted a place where they could show their work, as well as prints by his late father.

Cole says of his father's work: "It is as modern today as it was when he did it . . . He revealed the essence of an object."

Cole Weston became his father's assistant when Edward Weston first became afflicted with Parkinson's disease in 1945 (he died in 1958). One of the many things he remembers his father telling him was: "There are as many ways to photograph a tree (or any other object) as there are eyes to see it."

Both Cole and his brother, Brett — also an exceptional photographer — credit their father's influence and appreciate the fact that he showed them his technique, then left them alone to develop their own unique talents.

Cole is also known for his acting and directing abilities. He first came to Carmel in 1927, graduated from Sunset Grammar School and Monterey High. He returned to the Sunset scene as the first manager of Sunset Cultural Center. Of his own photographic work it has been said, "Cole Weston has exceptionally clear and tender vision."

THE FRENCHMAN IS RETIRING!

That's Emile Fodor, owner of The Frenchman dress shop for the past 20 years. His retirement brings the store in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center to a close after 12 years in that location. For eight years before that he was next to the Coachman's Inn on San Carlos.

The dress shop originally was a showcase for Fodor's custom tailoring, but he hasn't been doing that for several years — not since his wife died. The family will still be represented next door by the bridal shop owned by one of Fodor's seven children — daughter Therese Szabo.

Fodor isn't making extensive plans for his retirement, except to enjoy it. "I'll be remodeling my home," he said. That's in Carmel Woods.

GUILIANO'S: A GALA OPENING

It was a long time from conception to the opening of Guiliano's restaurant; when it came, however, it was — and is — impressive!

On Friday, Dec. 4, the three owners hosted a gala dinner for their friends and a long list of local people who helped them get it all together. There was a blessing by Father Juan of the Carmelite Basilica.

Then came two very special dinners in conjunction with Nielsen Bros. wine cellar: Villa Mt. Eden night on Dec. 8 and Beaulieu night on Dec. 9. Owners Robert and Susan Negri and Randel Swedberg warned prospective diners to be prepared for a "long but splendid evening" on the 9th, when wild boar roast was the featured entree.

Now settling down, Guiliano's (on Mission between Fifth and Sixth) offers authentic northern Italian food to the public, nearly nine months after they took over the space vacated by a laundromat. "Nine months — like having a baby!" Susan Negri said. Flooding was among the problems that delayed the restaurant's opening.

All is shipshape now. The restaurant specializes in regional pasta dishes, served in a "contemporary continental" setting. The interior was designed by Scott Lamb of San Francisco; it is unique. "You should see it for yourself and then you'll know what we mean," Mrs. Negri said.

Guiliano's came by its name honestly. It is Swedberg's nickname; his godparents are from northern Italy, and he operated an Italian restaurant in San Francisco's North Beach. The Negris' family heritage goes back to northern Italy, where they still have a home.

BUSINESS OWNERS ON PROBATION

The list of delinquent licensees in Carmel was down to six last week. Five appeared in court, all pleading guilty to charges that they were in arrears on payment of their annual business license fees (in each case, for more than one year). All were given two years' probation, with sentences suspended.

What that means is that there must be no similar offenses in the next two years, or the court will levy fines. Each of these five local businesses had paid all their back taxes and late payment penalties before going to court. However, because they were second offenders, the city did not request dismissal of the complaints.

"I don't think any of them will be back in court next year," said City Attorney George Brehmer.

One business owner paid what was owed to the city but did not appear in court. A bench warrant was issued.

BANCROFT AT THE HELM OF EXPANDING COMPANY

There is a new business complex rising out there on Garden Road near the Monterey Airport. It is company headquarters for the California Mutual Insurance Co. The company's president, Charlie Bancroft, is a Carmel Valley resident who is proud of the company's history (it was founded in 1898) and of the expansion that has brought about the new buildings.

It appears to be one large building, with a foyer and entryway; in fact there are three buildings, scheduled for completion next April. California Mutual will occupy most of the new space right away, with some short-term leases to other businesses.

There are other changes coming. "We are moving fairly rapidly into data processing on a large scale," Bancroft said. "We will have an almost paperless insurance company, one of the first to reach that stage."

California Mutual moved to its present location from Ventura about six years ago. Bancroft, who has been president 14 years, grew up in the Middle West and worked with Kemper Insurance before taking over at California Mutual. He and his wife live at the mouth of the Valley. One of their two daughters graduated from UC Berkeley and lives in Los Angeles, where she is following her father's footsteps into the insurance business. The other is a freshman at Skidmore College in New York.

Bancroft, described by a business associate as "astute and affable," is a leader in his field, serving on the boards of a number of state and national insurance organizations. He has also been involved with the Boy Scouts. He disclaims proficiency at golf, but enjoys it very much as a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

LOIS TOOLE — CATERING, AND MORE

If there is one busy woman in Carmel, it is Lois Toole. As she put it, "When I opened Lois' Catering Kitchen three years ago, I had visions of doing lovely parties for everyone. Catering is my true love." She is still doing that catering, but expansion into several other specialties means that she has to work hard to find the time for it.

Mrs. Toole's latest project, together with two co-conspirators, is a separate company named RHT, Inc. Its products include Raspberry White Wine Vinegar, Vinaigrette French Dressing, Orange Sauternes Jelly, Tomato Marmalade and Mint Jelly.

Partners with Mrs. Toole in this new venture are Theresa Russo and Mary Ann Huff. Theresa and Tom Russo are Carmel Valley ranchers, and one of the things they grow is raspberries. Their son, also named Tom, and his wife live at the ranch and help out. A daughter, Troy, 16, completes the family picture.

Mary Ann Huff lives in Hillsborough and is "one of the most vital, active people I know," Lois Toole said. That's especially interesting when you learn that she is in an iron lung. Board meetings of RHT, Inc. sometimes convene in the Huff's Hillsborough home, or at their second home in Pebble Beach. Mary Ann Huff's special contribution to the company is her French dressing recipe.

The company's products are available at Lois' Catering Kitchen in the Mid Valley Shopping Center, also at the Peppercorn in The Barnyard and Monterey Baking Co. in Carmel. Soon, also, at Nielsen Bros.

TWO MORE AT THE CROSSROADS

Mike and Lee Katz are the owners of not one, but two of the new businesses soon to open in The Crossroads! "Yes, it's an ambitious undertaking," Lee Katz agreed.

The couple moved from Los Angeles last September. "We had been contemplating a move," Mrs. Katz said. "Everything came together at this time and in that place."

One shop will be called Michael Lee. It is a sculpture gallery featuring the work of Sergio Bustamante, best known for his animal images in papier mache, brass, copper, wood and silver. Trained in architecture, Bustamante moved into design, painting and sculpture. Exhibits and workshops in Mexico, Amsterdam and Montreal (during the Olympics) followed.

Michael Lee will have some of Bustamante's most exciting pieces, including a baby giraffe (the "baby" is between five and six feet tall). His animals, and the birds for which he is especially famous, are all in limited editions, signed by the artists, and numbered. There is a Mexican flare to his works; they are bright, colorful and amazingly lifelike considering the variety of materials and metals he works with.

The second shop is right next door, and very different. It's Scandia Down, and the Katzes will be offering comforters, bedding and linens there.

Not only will there be light, warm and beautiful readymade items; Scandia Down will take special orders for similar items made from imported fabrics such as lovely damask from Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Katz anticipate that both the gallery and Scandia Down will open soon after the first of the year.

With all that going on, it's no wonder that the couple decided to make their move from Los Angeles in several stages. For the present they are renting a home in Pebble Beach; when things settle down a little, they will look for a permanent home and bring their furniture here. They have two grown children, a son who lives in Los Angeles and a daughter in Vancouver.

Neither of the Katzes has had a retail business before. Mike Katz has been a manufacturer's representative for home furnishings in the southland, while Mrs. Katz was assistant director for alumni relations at UCLA. They are counting on their varied experience and their enthusiasm for the special products at Michael Lee and Scandia Down to carry them through this new adventure.

The only difficulty with their busy-ness and the location of their present home, Mrs. Katz said, is that it takes her past seven golf courses every day. She loves the game and hopes to be able to play again — next year.

SAMBO'S: STILL OPEN FOR BUSINESS

It's true that Sambo's Restaurants, Inc. filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in Los Angeles; not true that the local Sambo's — Rio Road and Highway 1 — will close.

Manager Bruce Riddell said it is definite that this Sambo's will remain open, and there will be no cutbacks in personnel or service.

WHO IS THE UGLIEST BARTENDER?

Two Carmel bartenders are among the finalists for the title of the Central Coast's ugliest bartender! They are Tom Hughes of Toots Lagoon and Jack Sevier of the Red Lion, chosen from among 120 contestants.

It's all for a good cause. Receipts from the second annual Ugliest Bartender Contest — approximately $16,000 — go to multiple sclerosis research and local patient and community services. Sponsors are the Great Monterey Bay Area Chapter of M.S., Couch Distributing, Local 483 Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees International and KTOM radio.

Dickensian Christmas Ball a real winner

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

Guests were invited to enjoy Ye Olde English Repast at the Christmas Ball (in the Dickensian manner) hosted by the Monterey County Symphony Guild at the Monterey Country Club last Saturday evening.

The black tie affair drew a full house of some 250 people who enjoyed an evening of good cheer, fabulous food and dancing to the music of "The Scrooges."

Naturally, the food was typical English fare — roast beef and Yorkshire pudding with all the trimmings, including a dessert of trifle.

Caroling during the cocktail hour was provided by the choir from Robert Louis Stevenson School.

The table decorations were very Christmasy and also unique as the hostess of each table provided her own decorations.

The dinner dance to bring in the holidays was chaired by Mrs. B. J. Lattner and Mrs. Gilbert Craig.

Guild president is Mrs. Clarence Mitchell.

All proceeds from the affair will go to the Symphony Guild.

HOLIDAY GALA TO BENEFIT SPCA

One of the most popular events of the holiday season is the annual gala given by the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA).

Approximately 150 people attended this year's party which was held at the Pebble Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Terry on Dec. 15. Refreshments included cocktails and a wide variety of hors d'oeuvres.

The holiday atmosphere was enhanced by strolling musicians who played festive music as well as the standard Christmas carols.

Mrs. Tom Work was in charge of the party.

SPCA Auxiliary President, Mrs. Arthur Benning, said that the new wildlife rehabilitation center now under construction should be finished this winter. Injured or abandoned wildlife can be taken to the center where they will be treated and then released back into the natural environment.

HOLIDAY GALA FOR DELTA GAMMAS

With Christmas just around the corner, holiday galas seem to be piling one on top of the other. It's almost impossible to keep up, but one very festive affair was the "Christmas Cheer" party for Delta Gammas of the Monterey Alumnae Association.

The party was held at the beautiful Carmel Valley home of Florence Larson on Sunday, Dec. 6. Because Florence is going to be away for the holidays, she substituted an array of candle arrangements grouped in silver bowls and surrounded with greenery for the traditional Christmas tree.

Some 50 people attended the affair which offered champagne and an array of hors d'oeuvres prepared by the women. The buffet table boasted such delicacies as marinated mushrooms, shrimp, crab, baby pizzas served piping hot, cream cheese wrapped with chip beef, and numerous other good things.

Some of those joining in the holiday fun were Mr. and Mrs. Hewett Clark, Mrs. John McDaniel, Mr. and Mrs. Newcomb Diehl, Mr. and Mrs. William Ballard, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Helliesen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henning, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hiltabrand, and Mrs. Margaret Hyatt.

Others were: Mr. and Mrs. William James, Mrs. Edward Moe, Mrs. Alfred Mueh, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Toland, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Van Artsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Williams, Mr. and Mrs. William Wright and Mrs. Suzanne Paboojian. Suzanne, by the way, just passed the bar exam and is an up-and-coming young attorney.

Attending from Salinas were artist Elsie Dill and Mrs. James Van Noy.

Chairman for the affair was Mrs. James Doud.

CHRISTMAS AROUND THE WASSAIL BOWL

A Christmas gathering around the old wassail bowl seemed the perfect way to celebrate the holidays and the completion of a 12-week course of Turkish at the Defense Language Institute — so that's exactly what Lt. Col. Robert Walden did at his Carmel home last Sunday evening.

Bob and his wife, Altrice, live in Virginia so the celebration was also in honor of Altrice who left her teaching job to spend the holidays with her husband.

The couple will spend a portion of the holidays in San Francisco and Phoenix. Sometime around the first of the year they will head to Turkey where Bob will be a battalion Commander for the next two years.

Guests, including Bob's instructors, enjoyed cocktails and canapes including a delicious quiche Lorraine whipped up by Bob, who loves nothing more than to get in the kitchen and rattle the pots and pans.

Have a good trip, Bob and Al!

GREEK DANCERS PERFORM AT KALISA'S

Zorba the Greek would have been right at home in the upstairs room of Kalisa's of Cannery Row last Saturday evening when the Greek Folk Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula led by Maxine Myer twirled the night away.

The party got underway with a Greek dinner cooked by none other than Kalisa and it was so delicious that even the dancers stuffed themselves before adjoining to the upper room for "showtime."

Greek Folk dancing is unique in that no partner is needed, so audience participation was the first thing on the agenda. Maxine encouraged the "lookers" to join the group. After having them all join hands she quickly taught the beginners a fun dance called "Hasapaservico."

A bit later in the evening, the professional dancers who have been taking lessons from Maxine for the past two years or so changed into their ethnic Greek costumes and gave a rousing performance.

One couple who really got into the spirit of things was Darrell and Joanne Skerritt. Joanna, a dancer for the past 15 years, was also requested to lead many of the dancers, but it's only fair to say that Maxine has taught all of her students to "lead."

Music was provided by the husband and wife team of Joe and Bobbie Falco, known as "The Falcos." Joe played guitar while Bobbie played bouzouki and mandolin.

One of the few "couples" dances was the "Karsilama" which was performed with gusto by Joanne and Darrell and Chuck Chernoff and Joan Roberts. Joanne, by the way, teaches Greek dancing at the Rendez-Vous in Carmel on Thursday evenings from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Maxine teaches at Kalisa's each Monday evening from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. and also at Sunset Center in Carmel on Tuesday evenings and Wednesday mornings. The ages of her students range from 15 to 72.

Maxine has organized Greek Folk Dancers to be available for performances in hospitals and convalescence homes on the Peninsula beginning in January.

Not to be forgotten in the evening's fun was the enthusiastic dancing of Dr. Chuck Chernoff of Carmel. Chuck said that when he first started the classes it was a losing battle because he was all feet and was constantly messing up the line of dancers. Just when he was ready to throw in the towel, Maxine coached him into giving it one more try, and now wild horses couldn't keep the good doctor from performing.

Other dancers included Lou Pales, Karen Yedlicka, Joan Roberts, Ingrid Rutherford, Lillian Dinniman, Evelyn Calder, Rosemary Canfield, Judy Clark, and Aphro Ricupero.

GARDEN CLUB CHRISTMAS GALA

Members of the Carmel Valley Garden Club held their annual Christmas gala at the home of Mrs. Nelson Leoni last Saturday evening.

Each person brought a present to tuck under the huge and beautiful decorated Christmas tree. Later in the evening the presents were exchanged.

The ladies prepared chicken breast casseroles which were served with rice and tossed green salad plus other good things all topped off with ice cream with chocolate sauce and date nut cake squares.

Entertainment was provided by Ralph Easterling on the piano and Peter Clitherow on bass ukelele. These two master musicians soon had the entire group singing Christmas carols.

Some 80 people attended the party including club president Dr. Tom Ainsworth and his lovely wife, Sandy.

GILBERT AND LOUISE CARDEIRO BOYER VACATIONING IN MEXICO

Internationally-known pianist, lecturer and teacher Gilbert Boyer and his artist wife, Louise Cardeiro, are having a Mexican Christmas this year. The couple is spending the month of December in Baja, Mexico and will return home around New Year's.

Gilbert has been dividing his time between pupils at his Carmel studio and those at the Community School of Music and Santa Catalina School of Music where Louise has taught from time to time.

Pianist and conductor Stewart Robertson of Carmel Valley is looking after Gilbert's students while the Boyers are away. Stewart, by the way, is now conducting the Youth Orchestra for the Monterey Unified School District and is assistant conductor fo the Santa Cruz County Symphony Orchestra.

JENNIFER LAUREN'S MOM RETURNS TO WORK

Financial Services Officer Nancy Yee is back to work at Bank of America (Rio Road and Highway 1) after taking about two months off to enjoy her new daughter, Jennifer Lauren. Nancy, who has been with the bank for almost four years, said that she enjoyed the time with the new baby but that she's happy to be back to work.

Little Jennifer was born at Community Hospital at 6:26 a.m., Sept. 19. She weighed seven pounds, four ounces and was 21 inches long. As do both her mom and dad, Jennifer has black hair and brown eyes.

Nancy and her husband Michael are also the parents of Michael Jr. who is almost 3 years old.

Baby Jennifer was in such a hurry to greet the world that she didn't bother to wait for either her doctor or her father. After dropping Nancy off at the hospital, Michael was gone for nearly 10 minutes to take Michael Jr. to a babysitter. Upon arriving back at the hospital, Michael was informed that he was a new father. Nancy said that the nurses did a terrific job of delivering Jennifer, and that all is well.

RICK ABDALLA TO BE MARRIED ON VALENTINE'S DAY

Other news from the BofA is that manager Rick Abdalla (our perennial bachelor) is planning to be married to Janie Bishop of San Diego next Feb. 14. Janie is well established in property managemtn in San Diego, so the sad news is that Rick will be relocating. He has already asked for a transfer and is hoping that the move will go smoothly.

Rick, an avid skier, will spend the Christmas holidays in San Diego, and then it will be off to Lake Tahoe for a bit of fun in the snow.

CARMEL'S MOLLIE SMITH WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

Congratulations to Mollie Smith of Carmel who was recently announced as the winner of the oratorical contest conducted by Carmel American Legion Post 512. Carmel Post Commander Jim Collins said that the competition was very intense and that the winner was followed closely by the other four contestants who spoke on various aspects of the Constitution of the United States.

Three of the entrants, Mollie, Brian Stuart and Andy Dunigan, attend Robert Louis Stevenson School. Representing Carmel High School were Karen Armstead and Erin Davey.

Judges for the contest were Dr. Philip Dubrau, a retired Army chaplain; Dr. Al Giordano, an MPC professor; Dick Bragg, president of the Monterey County Board of Education; John Fanning, representing the McGraw-Hill Company, and Pat O'Malley, past commander of Post 512. All judges are members of the Post.

All Post level winners will compete in the 28th District competition to be held at the Martin Luther King School in Seaside, 1:15 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 7.

Special congratulations to Mollie!

"STEVE AND PEG MAGYAR DAY" SLATED FOR DEC. 20

Steve Magyar's announced retirement as president of Monterey Savings and Loan has given his friends a good reason to toss a day-long bash in his honor. They've decided to call it "Steve and Peg Magyar Day." Plans now include everything from a golf tourney to a have-a-good-time dinner and dance at Rancho Canada.

The "Raygam" golf tourney will get under way at 10 a.m. and will feature a host of prizes. The 18-hole round of fun golf will be staged in a format similar to a Shangri-La round. Word is that players won't need an established handicap and that there will be flites for both men and women.

Following the tourney, a no-host cocktail hour will be held at 4:30 p.m. followed by a Rancho Canada-style steak dinner with all the trimmings. Entertainment promises to be something special as emcees are Ted Durein and Nick Lombardo. The $20 cost for dinner will include a share in an appropriate gift for the Magyars.

The event is open to the public and reservations are necessary. Tourney cost is $12.50 per player and will include a golf cart. The tourney and the dinner are separate events and participants can attend one or both.

Those desiring further information should call 375-1500.

NATIONAL BANK OF CARMEL RECEPTION DRAWS MORE THAN 300 GUESTS

More than 300 people enjoyed holiday hospitality at the recent reception hosted by the National Bank of Carmel.

Present to welcome guests were Donald R. Nelson, president, and Robert L. Boynton, executive vice-president. Several members of the bank's board of directors were in attendance, including Chairman George Walker, R. Alan Williams and Zigmont LeTowt, II.

The bank has been open for nearly a year, so the reception was to acquaint local businesspeople with the bank.

Together with socializing, guests enjoyed champagne and wine, plus an array of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres.

VAN CREGO OVERWHELMED AT SURPRISE PRESENTATION

Cheers, applause and standing room only was the scene that greeted 18-year-old Van Crego when he attended what he thought was to be a regular meeting of Carmel Boy Scout Troop No. 3.

Actually, the affair was to honor Van with a surprise presentation ceremony. In the presence of city officials, parents, friends, teachers and even his dentist, Van was presented with his Fifth Eagle Palm and his patch to become an assistant scoutmaster.

In order to receive his Eagle Palm, Van was required to earn 24 merit badges beyond the original 24 which are required to become an Eagle Scout. Actually, Van earned 50 merits.

Van's father, Arthur, who is Scoutmaster of Troop No. 3 says that the "3" is definitely a lucky number because so many good things happen to the troop. One of those nice things is that four of the Scouts, including Van, recently finished filming a sports special on hiking with baseball great Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees.

Van's mom, Janet, is also in Scouting, and was recently presented the Award of Merit by the Peninsula District of the Monterey Bay Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Mrs. Crego received the award Nov. 13 at the Peninsula District Dinner at Fort Ord. She was cited for her service to youth that began as a Girl Scout leader in France and Louisiana. She later became Den Mother for Cub Pack 48 of Carmel.

According to available records, only one other Scout in the Monterey Bay Area Council has earned more Palms than Van. That person is Mike Schill who belonged to Troop 131.

Van, who has been in Scouting for seven years, is a senior at Carmel High. A member of the varsity baseball team, Van plays center field.

The Crego's two daughters were also involved in Scouting as is the oldest of their six grandchildren, Christian Brian Powers of Westminister, Colorado.

Congratulations Van!

GOOD NEWS FROM COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

Creation of the Community Hospital Foundation which will serve as a parent company for the hospital and related business activities has been approved by the hospital trustees.

Announcement of the corporate reorganization was made by Walter D. Scott, board chairman, and Thomas E. Tonkin, hospital administrator.

The move is part of a legal restructuring designed to help the hospital meet changing conditions and minimize government underpayment for the care of Medicare and Medi-Cal patients, said Scott.

According to Tonkin, the foundation will also serve to broaden public interest and support of the hospital, by involving more people in fund development activities.

Foundation membership requirements will be the same as those formerly existing for Community Hsoptal — a $5 donation for an annual membership.

The hospital's current trustees will become trustees of the foundation and the same people will serve on the governing boards of the hospital, the endowment and the real estate corporations.

Tonkin said that the current management staff will operate all four corporations and no new administrators would be needed. He also said that no increase in operating costs for the hospital will result from the reorganization.

HOLIDAY SPIRIT REIGNED AT CHRISTMAS GIFT SHOW

Christmas shoppers and browsers were out en masse for the "Artisans Give Thanks to the Animals" Christmas gift show held at La Playa Hotel on Friday, Dec. 4.

The 35 craftsmen showed their wares on tables spread throughout the lobby and various rooms on the ground floor.

This was the fourth annual affair for the craftsmen who offered such items as dolls, toys, metal sculpture, feathered hats, leather goods, pine needle baskets, stuffed animals, hand-carved wooden birds, rocking horses and numerous other creations.

Guests were offered wine and many of them took a break from their shopping to have a late supper in the lounge.

LaPlaya owner Bud Allen was doing doubletime trying to mingle with the shoppers as well as keeping tabs on the holiday party going on in his apartment.

Chairman of the affair was Ann Berthoin of Carmel.

CV water storage in Seaside unlikely

By ROBERT MISKIMON

PROSPECTS for storage of Carmel Valley water underground in Seaside do not appear favorable.

Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District learned Monday that preliminary test results from an underground injection well are somewhat discouraging.

Hydrogeology consultant John Logan of Carmel told the board that a hoped-for fresh water barrier against sea water had not formed in initial tests last week.

The barrier would be created by injection of fresh water underground near the ocean's edge to enable winter runoff from the Carmel River to be pumped and stored in the Seaside aquifer.

The technique could increase system-wide capacity of the California-American Water Co. by as much as 1,700 acre feet per year and has been mentioned as one alternative to construction of another dam on the Carmel River.

"Instead of building up a cone, we got the flattest tortilla I've ever seen," Logan explained. "It's recharging slower because the subsurface is so permeable. It ain't very good."

Logan, who is under contract to WWD Corp. of Monterey to perform the tests, told the board that injection of water at the rate of 20 gallons per minute in initial tests had failed to produce positive result. The next step will be to inject water at a faster rate, he said.

"At a distance of 700 feet from the sea, we need to raise a cone four or five feet high," he said. "In three days of injection at 20 gallons per minute, we got two or three inches."

District manager Bruce Buel said the initial test results mean "we may have trouble achieving a barrier" to permit underground storage of fresh water from Carmel Valley.

Resource analyst Frances Krebs, who assists Logan in the tests, said the results mean the injected water "is spreading out instead of mounding" because of the highly permeable composition of the sands.

"We've turned off the water and we will monitor the decay of the cone," she said. "Then we'll turn the water on full-blast — about 80 gallons a minute — to see if that creates a mound."

However, if an injection rate of 80 gallons per minute is required to create and sustain a barrier the process may prove not to be cost-effective, since initial projections were based on a 20-gallon-per-minute rate, Ms. Krebs said.

"We'll play it by ear and see what the results are in a few days. It doesn't look too favorable," she said. A written progress report on results of the tests is to be presented to the board in January.

In other business, the board:

• Adopted a plan suggested by manager Bruce Buel to solicit the cooperation of the Department of Fish and Game and Cal-Am in development of a management plan for Los Padres reservoir to prevent more silt releases, such as the one which caused a fishkill in October.

• Approved connection fees of 0.4 percent of the value of new building permits in the district to raise funds to pay for feasibility studies of another dam on the Carmel River and other methods of providing additional water supplies.

• Accepted responsibility for administration of the mitigation program for Cal-Am's four new wells in Carmel Valley, conditioned upon an agreement between the district and the water company which details individual obligations.

Canada Segunda subdivision:

CVPOA board impressed but —

DIRECTORS of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association are impressed with plans to develop 173 building sites on the 900-acre Canada Segunda project in lower Carmel Valley, but have taken no position on the project.

The CVPOA board of directors listened to a presentation on the project by developer Skip Marquard of Porter-Marquard Realty, and attorney Myron Etienne at its Dec. 9 meeting.

The board decided to take a walking and driving tour of the property, owned by Howard Morgens, in January. Development plans call for 173 residential building sites on 562 acres, with 348 acres to be donated to the county for addition to Jacks Peak Park.

Marquard explained that the land would be donated through the Carmel Valley Land Preservation Association, with long-range stewardship by a non-profit foundation.

Lot sizes to be offered — if the project is approved after the Carmel Valley Master Plan is revised and readopted — would range from one to 40-acres, Marquard said. Average lot size would be three acres.

"Board members were high in their praise of the advance steps taken by the developer to stay within the requirements of the Carmel Valley Master Plan and environmental impact regulations," said Dick Nimmons, CVPOA board member.

"They agreed to take no action at this time on a developer request to state the board's position on the plan to donate land to the Jacks Peak Park system. Board members tentatively agreed that it was not within the function of the CVPOA board to approve or disapprove of developer plans as they may be presented by various developers seeking approval under the Carmel Valley Master Plan."

The board set Jan. 6, 1982 as the date for the general membership meeting to install new officers for 1982. The dinner will be held at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Aebersold faces reduced charges

ARRAIGNMENT on charges of grand theft against Gary Aebersold of Carmel has been set for Dec. 22 in Monterey County Superior Court.

The 31-year-old man faces two of six original felony charges and two misdemeanor counts which relate to house and yard work he performed or promised to perform.

Aebersold was charged in municipal court with two felony counts of extortion and four counts of grand theft, plus two misdemeanor charges — petty theft and trespassing.

All but grand theft charges were dismissed last week by Judge Michael Fields when the case was bound over to superior court. The two misdemeanor charges are still pending.

One of the grand theft charges relates to allegations by a 94-year-old Carmel woman that she paid Aebersold a total of $2,118 for roofing work which had been estimated to cost only $225.

The second involves payments of $865 by two men to paint and do yard work at a vacant house in Carmel. The owners claim the work was never performed.

In a statement to the Pine Cone/Outlook Aebersold said he felt the Carmel police had singled him out because of prior criminal convictions. Aebersold said the roofing work for the 94-year-old woman cost more than the original estimate because it was an "emergency" job, and said he was unable to get started on the house painting project because of his arrest and incarceration in November.

Allan Kleinkopf, his attorney from the Monterey County Public Defender's Office, said all of the charges against his client could have been civil, rather than criminal complaints.

"I wouldn't call it so much police harassment as perhaps some over-zealous police prosecution,." Kleinkopf said.

Gen. Doolittle heads unit for City of Hope fundraising

Gen. James H. Doolittle, Carmel, the long-time honorary chairman of the Insurance Council of California for the City of Hope National Medical Center, is continuing to serve in this capacity for the 1981/82 term.

Gen. Doolittle is an active supporter of the council which was established in 1979. The council has become a major fundraising group for the City of Hope with its membership consisting of a cross section of the industry.

The City of Hope, housed in 45 buildings on 93 acres in Duarte, near Los Angeles, makes free care available to patients with cancer and leukemia; heart, blood and lung diseases; diabetes and other hereditary and metabolic disorders. Admission is by referral from physicians, hospitals or health agencies.

Beery completes AF training

Airman James W. Beery, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Beery of Carmel, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

The airman, who is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

PARISH AND GUILD MEETING

The annual meeting of All Saints' Episcopal Church took place last Friday afternoon. J.E. Walker and W.L. Overstreet were reelected treasurer and clerk respectively. A very satisfactory financial report was presented. A resolution extolling the character of the late William Greer Harrison, senior warden, was adopted. A committee was appointed to procure and present a suitable appreciation of the labors here of Rev. A.W. Darwall who leaves shortly to assume the rectorship of a parish in Michigan. Action was taken looking toward making All Saints' an organized mission. Delegates to the House of Churchwomen were elected as follows: Mrs. Ashburner, Mrs. Charles Clark, Mrs. Cumming, Mrs. E.L. Williamson and Miss E. Gray.

NATIVITY PLAY WINS WARM PRAISE OF ALL

A large audience filled the Sunset School auditorium for the annual presentation of a Nativity play last Friday night.

The play, The Finding of the King, was elaborately done and will live long in the memories of the 80 youngsters who took part in the cast, not to say the several hundred in the audience. It was staged under the direction of Miss Madeline Currey, instructor in music at the school.

Difficult as the presentation of a Nativity play is, the youngsters, many under ten years of age, did nobly. They spoke their lines with clearness and there was little that could not be heard.

Members of the Carmel P.T.A., under the direction of Mrs. John Bathen, aided Miss Currey in producing the play. Stage lights, an organ, and other articles used in the setting of the play were loaned by Edward G. Kuster from the Studio Theatre of the Golden Bough.

SAM-PATTI'S OPENS IN FORMER LOCATION OF GENE AND PARVIN'S

Carmel's newest restaurant, Sam-Patti's will open Saturday, Dec. 23, in the premises occupied formerly by Gene and Parvin. Proprietors are Mrs. Erma Zampatti and Mrs. Kathleen Samuels. Home cooked food, and homemade cakes, pastries and desserts will be served, with breakfast, luncheon, afternoon tea and dinner offered.

Mrs. Samuels has been assistant manager of Holiday Inn on Carmel Point, and was previously connected with the Brigstock Restaurant in London.

Mrs. Zampatti operated the Scotch Bakery in Pacific Grove for a number of years.

Mrs. Samuels and Mrs. Zampatti plan to add Italian dishes to their menus once Zampatti's is under way.

Paintings by Carmel Art Association members will be displayed on the walls of the premises.

CHILDREN IN SINGOUT FOR CHRISTMAS

The dulcet tones of River School's chorus warmed the chill of Sunset Center Auditorium when the young singers presented parents and friends with a program of 12 traditional Christmas favorites. Directed by Gene Perrine, the chorus consists of Jenny Keller, Cheryl Cleary, Mandy Girard, Megan Sacco, Lee Ann Steinmetz, Cathy Keeler, Gina Criscola, Sue Morris, Kay Cronander, Sally Layman, Patty Miller, Sarah Gray, Kristy Miller, Jeff Sutton, Arlene Ferrill, Karen Stafford, Kris Huston, Deanna Burns, Dora Berstein and Kevin Criddle.

Under the able direction of Miss Sharon Jones, the combined orchestra of Woods and River Schools heralded the yuletide season. Playing their hearts out were Kerry Wald, Keith Bayless, Katie Leonard, Misty Carlin, Robert Gabel, Shawn Smith, Brent Threadgill, Conan Schleicher, Jamie Ark and Allison Douglas.

A CHRISTMAS TREE FARM IN CARMEL VALLEY

"They're so healthy, so happy!"

Harold and Elsie Quentel smiled modestly when they hear these phrases again and again during December. It isn't children, or puppies, or colts their seasonal visitors are admiring, but trees — rows and rows of Monterey pines and Douglas firs that stretch across most of the five-acre parcel that comprises Quentel Evergreen Farm.

The well-manicured forest is mostly hidden from motorists. For 49 weeks out of the year, almost no one bothers to slow down for a second look.

But when December rolls around, the Quentels are suddenly very popular. People come from miles to drive down the narrow road that leads past a red clapboard house and winds around to a marmalade forest.

Here on the rich river bottom land, Harold Quentel moves with paternal pride among the 5,000 pines and firs he has planted, nursed, watered, pruned, sprayed and cultivated.

FOREST HOMES RECEIVE AWARDS

Two major awards have been presented by the American Institute of Architects to Pebble Beach homes. An award of Merit was presented to architects Burde, Shaw and Associates for the Spyglass housing project. This is a cluster complex of houses which adapts to different slopes, styles and family needs. Living areas radiate off entry stairwells and the outlook from the main room is not concentrated in one direction.

An Honor Award was given to David Smith and Roger Larson for a pole house. The site of the home is densely wooded so the use of huge wood poles embedded into the ground was employed to allow for minimum disburbance to the terrain. An added bonus to the use of the poles is the elevating of the house to sun and fantastic views of the cove.

Library cuts to be discussed

A consultant's recommendation that the Monterey County Board of Supervisors cut county subsidies to local libraries will be discussed by the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees when it meets Dec. 22 at 4 p.m. in Carmel City Hall.

Carmel Librarian Peg Richter said the board will discuss its reaction to action taken by the board of supervisors this week.

Consultant David Sabsay has recommended that the county adopt a new formula to determine library subsidies — a formula that would mean a loss of $140,000 to Carmel.

In a meeting two weeks ago, the library board agreed that such a loss would mean a significant curtailment of library services and called Sabsay's recommendation "unacceptable," in the words of Richter.

Of the $439,000 in the 1981-82 Harrison Memorial Library budget, $160,000 comes from county subsidies.

In other action, the library board is expected to discuss a request by employees asking for doubletime pay on Sundays.

CHS Padre Parents Club news

Bobbye Hall has been appointed to the Carmel High School Padre Parents Board, replacing Janet Childs, who resigned because of scheduling conflicts.

The board discussed a variety of agenda items during its recent monthly meeting held at the home of Wendy Banks and attended by two student guests: Miche Nichols and Steve Giraudo.

CHS Principal Marsha Kading told the board that the school's ceramic program will continue despite the recent fire and destruction of the ceramics building.

Kading added that the school staff and board of trustees will hold a two-hour study session to review the English, physical education and social science departments. Time and location of the meeting has not been set.

The FOCUS program and the Padre Parents are co-sponsoring an "Abigail Adams" presentation by the American Living History Theatre Jan. 21 at 11 a.m., and 1 and 3 p.m.

Gail Salmonsen reported a donation of $2,326 from SCRAMP for the Padre Parents scholarships.

The next Padre Parents meeting will beheld Jan. 7 at the home of Hall, 4000 Rio Road. All CHS parents are invited to attend.

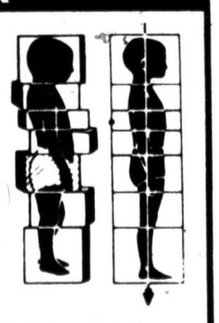
STRAIGHT TALK

This is the first of a series of articles by Pacific Grove Certified Rolfer Gene Sage.



Q WHY SHOULD I GET ROLFED?

Most people come to Rolfing for relief of chronic muscular or joint pain (usually after exhausting conventional approaches). Ironically Rolfing is not oriented toward "fixing" symptoms. It utilizes a form of deep massage of the muscles and connective tissue to bring the structure back into vertical alignment. In this process, most chronic aches and pain disappears. Some people get Rolfed to become more alive and expressive emotionally. Rolfing removes what Wilhelm Reich characterized as "body armour". Old emotional traumas are relived and then released, allowing new energy to flood through the traumatized areas. Other benefits will be discussed in future columns.

Katherine Claire Sherer

Demanding and receiving plenty of attention at the Carmel Valley home of Michael and Carol Sherer is little Miss Katherine Claire who was born at Community Hospital at 2:20 a.m., Nov. 4. At birth, Katherine weighed 8 pounds, 3 ounces and was 21 inches long. Her mom says she has big blue eyes and reddish-blond hair.

Delighted to have a new sister is Lauren, 4, who calls the new baby "duckling."

Katherine's grandparents are Mrs. Bernice Imwalle of Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherer of Arizona.

Katherine's dad is with Century 21 Real Estate and he also does appraising. Her mom is a nurse.

Dad was present for Katherine's birth, and a few hours later he took the new mom and baby home. He's also a big help around the house and, if necessary, will take charge of the diaper chores.

Mom has taken a four-month leave of absence from her job so she can spend more time with baby Katherine — and Grandma Bernice has also been a big help.

Welcome Katherine!

Jennifer Elizabeth Morris

The new member of the William and Wendy Morris family is Jennifer Elizabeth who was born at Community Hospital at 2:45 a.m. on Nov. 15. She weighed 7 pounds, 2 ounces at birth and was 20 inches long. She has blue eyes and light brown hair.

Jennifer's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Morris of Wisconsin and Mr. and Mrs. Don Rosenblatt of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Jennifer's father is the assistant golf pro at Spyglass and her mom works at the Wide World of Golf Travel Agency in Carmel.

Reports say that Jennifer is an unusually good baby who sleeps most of the night. When she does decide to do a bit of partying in the wee hours, her dad is a good sport about getting up and walking the floor with her.

Jennifer's mom took a leave of absence from work to spend those precious first months with the new baby. Grandma and Grandpa Rosenblatt helped out with the baby chores during their three-week visit.

When Jennifer first arrived, the family's pet pooch was just a wee bit jealous. Now, he enjoys protecting Jennifer and growls if a stranger gets too near to his young charge.

Welcome to the world and Carmel, Jennifer!

Free films are offered by the Monterey Library

The Monterey Library presents A Christmas Carol, the classic tale about a miser who has the dickens scared out of him by a procession of ghastly ghosts. The film, which was made in England, stars the inimitable Basil Rathbone.

The second film on the library's free program is Hollywood, The Dream Factory, a look at the development of the motion picture industry from the early '20s to the present. The film covers the introduction of sound, the star system, the introduction of color, and the decline of the great studios in the '60s.

The films will be shown at 2 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17 at the library, 625 Pacific, Monterey. For more information phone 646-3930.

CV moratorium challenge fails

"YOU WILL HAVE one heck of a good time in superior court."

Supervisor Marc Del Piero gave that parting shot to Salinas attorney Brian Finegan Tuesday as the Board of Supervisors denied Danny Garcia's challenge to the Carmel Valley building moratorium.

Supervisors didn't agree with Finegan's contention that Garcia's proposed 11-acre Rancho Mar Monte development in the High Meadow area of Carmel had been approved "by operation of law."

Garcia submitted a tentative subdivision map application to the county planning department in March of 1979 and an application for rezoning was submitted at about the same time, Finegan told supervisors.

Although the proposed development is within the Carmel Valley Master Plan planning area and is covered by the building moratorium, Finegan said the county had the discretion to approve his client's project.

Since no action had been taken on the application within one year, it had been approved, Finegan argued. Applicable state laws require that the county take some action on a subdivision map within one year, he said.

The Board of Supervisors enacted the Carmel Valley interim ordinance July 3, 1979 to prohibit new development in the Valley. That measure has been extended by court order until June of 1982.

Even though the moratorium was in effect, "the board was not stripped of all authority to approve applications by that ordinance," Finegan said. "You still retain the discretion to define those applications which have little or no effect on population density and to approve them."

Richard Dalsemer, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, urged the board to deny the appeal.

"During the time that the Rancho Mar Monte project has been pending, interim ordinances and a court order have been in effect specifically prohibiting processing new subdivisions prior to June 1982 or the adoption of an updated Carmel Valley Master Plan," Dalsemer said.

"No action on this or any other subdivision map, therefore, has been possible since July 3, 1979. The CVPOA has strongly supported the Carmel Valley Master Plan since the plan's inception and we urge the Board of Supervisors to continue its own support for the Master Plan by denying this appeal."

"The moratorium is an overriding issue," said Supervisor Dusan Petrovic. "If we don't support it, we will corrupt the Master Plan."

The appeal was denied by 5-0 vote.

First of four articles:

The joys and risks of collecting

Editor's Note: This is the first of four articles on the risks and rewards of collecting, as prepared by the Calif. Society of Certified Public Accountants. The next three articles will discuss how to choose low-risk collectibles; how to shop at auctions; and how to calculate the cost of building a collection. We are publishing these articles because of the high degree of interest in this subject by persons residing in this area. We hope you will enjoy reading them.

BUY TIME-TESTED COLLECTIBLES TO REDUCE RISK

Although no collectible is certain to appreciate in value, or provide quick profits, some collectibles are less risky than others. To minimize the risk of losing money, says the California Society of CPAs, search for quality collectibles in well established fields. And be prepared to hold your acquisition for five to ten years.

Stamps, coins and diamonds currently rank highest in investment popularity behind gold, oil, and silver, according to dealers. Their popularity stems, in part, from having established standards for evaluation of their worth. These standards mean your collectible is less likely to lose value because of popular trends.

Even if you can't profit from your collection, you should be able to sell for the price you paid originally. Trading in these areas may be slow but prices rarely fall.

Liquidity figures importantly in the popularity of collectibles. To judge the size of a market, simply count the number of dealers listed in the yellow pages. Because an influx of investors raises prices, trendy fields show spurts of growth followed by sudden decline. But the market for fine and decorative art and collectibles is stable because it depends on collectors who enjoy their hobby with or without a profit.

Nostalgia items, on the other hand, often exhibit the inconsistency of fads. Occasionally you may read headlines of a record-breaking sale of baseball cards, comic books or autographs, but your memorabilia will probably be more difficult to sell. Auctions occur infrequently and dealers profit by buying low and selling high. If you invest in these riskier, less rare collectibles, CPAs advise, keep in mind how strongly their prices react to changes in taste.

HISTORICALLY, numismatics (coins) is one of the highest-yield, lowest-risk investments. Over the past five years, 20 rare U.S. coins appreciated more than 20 percent. Experts say that three billion to four billion coins are traded annually. This large, well established market makes numismatics one of the most liquid collectibles.

The monetary value of your coins offers you a small safeguard against market collapses; but your big advantage in numismatics is the small amount of management required. You can store your coins in a safe deposit box for a small fee. If you wish to sell your portfolio, it can be easily divided. And you don't have to worry about the durability of your collection.

Since 1973, 129 rare U.S. stamps have appreciated 408 percent. You can further decrease your risk in this field by buying a share of a stamp syndicate. An organizer, often a stamp collector, combines your money with that of the other share holders to buy available, rare stamps. The portfolio is later sold at a profit and your initial share and a percentage of the profit is returned.

Philately (stamp collecting) displays some of the same low cost management qualities as numismatics. You can buy inexpensive and easily accessible albums to store and display your collections. Yearly stamp catalogues and quarterly updates allow you to check the value of your stamps. If you pay inflated prices it will merely take longer to recoup your output.

Diamonds also offer you low risk as collectibles because the market is growing while the supply remains relatively stable. However, you can lose money in diamonds by buying retail and selling wholesale. Only two percent of the diamonds mined are fit for investment and, without further discoveries, you might see the exhaustion of the current supply within 40 years. You should seek out only established dealers when buying diamonds, because frauds inject risk into the market.

You can never eliminate risk completely and even within the same field, the possibility for appreciation differs from item to item. But with high quality, time-tested collectibles, you are more likely to avoid losses.

First of four articles.

Bringing home a live Christmas tree?

Here are some fire prevention tips

When you bring a Christmas tree into the home, you bring joy as well as a potential fire hazard.

Several steps can be taken to reduce the risk of fire according to Kalani Fonseca, fire prevention officer for the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

Christmas trees become extremely flammable when cut long in advance of use and brought indoors where heat and low humidity accelerate drying, Fonseca cautioned.

Tree shoppers should look for the freshest of trees and make certain that they are kept from drying by submerging cut trunks in water. A tree trunk can absorb water quickly, so the reservoir should be checked daily and refilled if low.

Taking these precautions should help a tree to remain fresh and adequately flame resistant during normal holiday use, he said.

Dry trees are without question the most flammable item to be found in homes during the holidays, Fonseca said. The Douglas Fir is especially prone to drying, he warned.

Once a dry tree is ignited, the speed and intensity of fire is extreme. A dry tree set on fire will appear to explode and become nearly consumed in a matter of seconds.

As an extra precaution, Christmas tree buyers are urged by Fonseca to flameproof the trees by applying a sufficient amount of effective flame-retardant chemical either into or onto the surface of the tree.

There are several effective products on the market including XL Clear, Sinclair's FR8, and Sentree Clear Flame Retardant, Fonseca observed.

"Attempts to flameproof Christmas trees by spraying them with solutions of water dissolved chemicals such as Borax, boric acid, diammonium phosphate or ammonium sulphate are completely useless, since the trees will not absorb such water-based solutions," Fonseca said.

"Any source which recommends the use of common water-mixed chemicals for flameproofing Christmas trees is in error and should be ignored," Fonseca stressed.

For information on where to purchase the flameproofing products, telephone Fonseca at 659-2021.

Hascal Stewart wins Coolbrith Circle award

For three years in a row, poems by Carmel Valley resident Hascal V. Stewart have won awards in annual Poetry Day Contests sponsored by the Ina Coolbrith Circle of San Francisco.

Winning this year was her poem, The Visiting Hour, which placed second in the category of poems of twelve lines or less in any form.

The poetry association was founded September 28, 1919 to honor Ina Coolbrith, California's first poet laureate. Objects of the association are the promotion of poetry as an art, the study of California history and literature, and the discussion and preservation of the works by California writers.

The poem follows:

The Visiting Hour

In this solarium,
just as the stopped up water of a stream
finds its own dark level,
so does the speech of each one here.
When aged frustration breaks the surface,
bleak sounds may assail
the relentless walls . . .
Briefly, today,
the room was refreshed —
a river was flowing . . .
In response to the lingering of a quiet hand,
a voice regained its music
with an articulate
"I love you."

Selection of police chief proves to be highly volatile issue

SELECTION of a new police chief for Carmel may prove to be a crucial test of the strength of the city administrator form of government.

Although City Administrator Doug Peterson has the authority to appoint a successor to retired Chief William Ellis next month, the selection process has become perhaps the most volatile issue in Carmel politics.

Supporters of Capt. Robert Fischer for the job presented the council at its Tuesday session with signatures of about 1,000 Carmel residents who said they want Fischer for the next police chief.

Until Carmel adopted the city administrator form of government four years ago, major city appointments were made by the council. Traditionally, the city has followed a promote-from-within policy in selection of police chiefs.

City Administrator Doug Peterson has engaged the services of a San Clemente recruitment agency to solicit and screen applicants for police chief. The firm is to recommend the 10 best qualified applicants for further consideration.

Peterson said deadline for application is Dec. 31, and indicated he expects to make an appointment "in the first couple of weeks of January." At the council meeting, Peterson indicated Fischer's application would be considered regardless of whether it is among the 10 selected by the screening process.

Toland Doud gave the council a plaque which was presented to the late Tor Spindler by his first graduating class in police science in 1957. Among the graduates of that class was Bob Fischer.

Doud, with William Pentony, has spearheaded the drive for Fischer's appointment.

"Mrs. Spindler wanted me to tell you that she considers Bob Fischer the best qualified for the job and that he will make a fine police chief," Doud told the council. "We feel that the combination of his expertise and experience would be hard to match.

"And we wonder why there is all this outside recruiting, when about 99 percent of Carmel wants Bob Fischer."

Pentony presented the petitions bearing about 1,000 signatures and told the council that "the overwhelming majority of people in Carmel support" Fischer for the job.

George Faul of Carmel said some Carmel residents were "harassed into signing" the petition, and said some of his friends "deeply regret signing this."

"This process puts our city administrator under fire," Faul protested.

"We want the city administrator to realize we are not apathetic," said Dan Brodell of Carmel. "We're concerned."

ROBERT Stephenson, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission, questioned whether the majority of people in Carmel really support the appointment of Fischer.

"The petitions, by themselves, are not a fair representation of what the people are thinking," Stephenson said.

"I have a great sadness over the fact that 1,000 people signed the petition over a political issue, and we got only 13 applicants for the General Plan Advisory Committee. If you want to talk about apathy — there it is."

City Administrator Doug Peterson assured the public and council that Fischer would be given due consideration.

"Captain Fischer will be included in all the final screenings — not just the top 10," Peterson said. "My effort will be to do the best I can for the community."

In other business, the council:

• Adopted revised guidelines for operation of the General Plan Advisory Committee which give the committee the power to vote and to select a chairman.

• Donated an antique Mack fire engine to Bay School for restoration and use in the school program.

Obituaries

Robert Taylor

Robert Wade Taylor died Dec. 7 at his Pebble Beach residence after a long illness. He was 64.

Mr. Taylor was born Oct. 17, 1917, in Weeksbury, Ky. He served 30 years in the Army, retiring in 1967 as a captain.

He was a member of Masonic Lodge 125 of West Virginia, the Pebble Beach Sports Car Club and was past president of the Reserve Officers Association of Monterey.

Survivors include his wife, Florence; a son, Robert R. of Reisterstown, Md.; a daughter Joan Davis of San Francisco; a sister, Lillian Conley of Cumberland, Md.; his mother, Leafy Taylor of Cumberland; and two grandchildren.

The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the charity of the donor's choice.

Alice Ringheim

Alice Cornelia Ringheim, a resident of Carmel Valley, died Dec. 11 at Community Hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 95.

Born Nov. 29, 1886, in Lyon County, Iowa, Miss Ringheim spent 34 years as a social worker for the state of California before her retirement. There are no immediate survivors.

The Mission Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

R.C. Peacock

Robert C. Peacock, a longtime Peninsula resident, died Dec. 13 at his home. He was 74.

Born Oct. 17, 1907, he graduated from the University of Portland in Portland, Ore., and worked at the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland.

He was an Army veteran of World War II. He was manager of the front desk of the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco and after moving to Carmel, was desk clerk of the La Playa Hotel and later the Pine Inn.

Mr. Peacock leaves no surviving relatives.

Contributions in his memory were suggested to the Community Hospital Heart Fund, Box HH, Monterey.

Leslie Collins

Leslie A. Collins of Carmel Valley Manor, a retired shipping company executive, died Dec. 12 at his residence after an extended illness. He was 80.

Mr. Collins was born Jan. 24, 1901, in London, England. He had retired from the Rotterdam Shipping Co. and had lived on the Monterey Peninsula since 1972.

He is survived by his wife, Mary.

The Farlinger Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

PGHS graduates being sought

Where were you in '62? If you were graduated from Pacific Grove High School that year, your classmates are looking for you.

A committee is being formed to plan the class of '62's 20-year reunion. Those who want to help in planning efforts or who know the whereabouts of class members should contact Kathy Besag at 646-0439.

Father Farrell's wisdom

'Never be a sourpuss'

Sarah Dale Manakee was born in West-by-God Virginia, and now she is living in Sandy Springs, Maryland. At the age of 84 she began a new career as an artist, painting in oil the things she knew and loved — rivers, oceans, flowers and hillsides.

She gives us this advice: "Stay busy, sleep well, eat well and don't be a sourpuss. The worst thing that can happen to you is not to have anything to do; no interests, you'll get old quickly then." She has just celebrated her 105th birthday.

The Pulse, the Community Hospital magazine, quotes an old Chinese proverb: "A bit of fragrance always clings to the hand that gives you roses." Oh Lord, help us to keep busy, never to be a sourpuss and to go on giving roses.

I quote this poem by Sam Walter Foss from memory and I think it's correct:

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by.
Men who are good and men who are bad
As good and as bad as I.
I shall not sit on the scorner's bench
Nor hurl the cynics ban
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
And be a friend of man."

Finally, when we forget ourselves, we do things that are remembered. A Danish proverb says, "No one is rich enough to do without a neighbor." Amen.

Card of thanks

The family of Lorna Worth want to express its gratitude for the support and sympathy that has been given to them by Lorna's and their friends. If it were possible, your kindness alone would return Lorna to us today. A memorial gathering will be held at Garland Ranch Park, Carmel Valley Rd, at 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9, 1982. please support The Salvation Army, Box 1884, Monterey, in Lorna's name.

THE ALTERNATIVES

(a new approach to funeral service)

A selection of services uniquely compatible with contemporary thinking.

"THE PINE"...Cremation without services
"THE CYPRESS"...Cremation with memorial service
"THE OAK"...Burial without formality
"THE MAPLE"...The traditional Service

PREPLANNING IS A LOGICAL PART OF THIS CONCEPT

The advantage of "The Alternatives" is its unlimited flexibility. It can be traditional or contemporary... with or without ritual...small or large...indoors or outdoors...religious or not...whatever the family feels should be the appropriate tribute.

Salvador Dali's fantastic art returns here

The dictionary says "surrealism" means "fantastic imagery" — art that defies the conventions of the day. But for people around the globe "surrealism" means "Salvador Dali," a painter who has delighted, astonished and sometimes scandalized his audience for most of a century.

Solid gold watches that melt into timelessness. The famous curlicue mustache. A twinkle in the eye that suggests that the painter knows a little more about the reality beneath reality than you do. These are Dali's gifts to a world that often seems mired in dullness.

At 77, the artist is too ill for globetrotting, but he is sending a retrospective collection from New York to Tokyo with a stop at Carmel in between. Why Carmel?

"Good connections," says Buck Gregory of the Julie Gregory Gallery, Mission between Fifth and Sixth, which now has several original Dali paintings and lithographs on display. Good connections, plus the fact that Dali had a studio in Pebble Beach during the early '40s, and apparently retains an affection for this area.

The exhibit, which runs through Jan. 10, also displays several photographs of Dali and his wife, Gala, in various Monterey Peninsula settings.

While he was in California, Dali collaborated with Walt Disney on what was to be a film that mixed animation with live action on a ballet theme. Unfortunately, the movie was never completed, but the Julie Gregory Gallery has six watercolor and pen-and-ink studies for it titled Destino.

Most people, when asked to name the most viewed piece of art in the world, would say "Mona Lisa," but they would be wrong. For security reasons, La Giaconda is on exhibit at The Louvre only twice a year. The most viewed painting is none other than Dali's The Sacrament of the Last Supper, which was shown to 4.5 million people last year at The National Gallery in Washington D.C. Dali also holds the record for the highest price ever paid for the work of a living artist — $807,200 for Le Sommeil.

From the very beginning, Dali was a nonconformist, even wearing his hair unfashionably long in the '20s, when he was a student at a Madrid art school.

"I was the first heepie," he said later.

In 1941 he gave a party at the Hotel Del Monte attended by Bing Crosby, Ginger Rogers, Edward Arnold, Bob Hope and lesser lights. The party's theme was A Surrealist Night in an Enchanted Forest, and Dali actually made a trip to Fleishhacker Zoo in San Francisco to find inspiration for the decor. Also, he hoped to bring back a live giraffe, but history does not record whether he succeeded.

Throughout his long career Dali has pulled a variety of zany stunts. Once, for example, he filled his Rolls Royce with cauliflowers and drove through Paris streets fairly buried in vegetables. On another occasion in Spain a car full of artichokes nearly choked him. Sometimes people would reach out to shake his hand and find themselves gripping the cold plaster hand of his latest statue, which he had inserted up his sleeve.

Behind the exhibitionism, though, there was always the shy, serious Dali, the craftsman dedicated to his art. It might even be said that Salvador Dali, once regarded as an entertaining but rather freakish painter, has become, through talent, hard work and longevity, the world's greatest living artist.

For more information phone 625-2256.

SALVADOR DALI hovers in the hollow of an oak tree on the grounds of the Lodge at Pebble Beach in 1941. He is in pursuit, not of butterflies, but of the Devil, a persistent character in his work. A retrospective exhibit of Dali paintings and lithographs is on display at the Julie Gregory Gallery, Mission between Fifth and Sixth, through Jan. 10.

DALI CLOWNS outside his Pebble Beach studio in the early 1940s. The plaster hand he is holding aloft became the hand of Leda Atomica, one of his greatest statues.

EVEN A WORLD FAMOUS PAINTER has to make a living. When Salvador Dali plied his trade in Pebble Beach during the early '40s, one of his commissions was for an advertisement for a London hosiery company. The result, a combination of pen and ink, collage and oil, ran on the back cover of an art magazine for years. Point Lobos forms the background for the bouquet of legs. A traveling Dali exhibit of paintings and lithographs is on display at the Julie Gregory Gallery, Mission between Fifth and Sixth, through Jan. 10.

REGGIE JACKSON APPEARS to enjoy the rugged life of the outdoorsman, but don't let him fool you. Jackson arrived at this campsite atop Mt. Manuel by helicopter, and left the same way. In between flights, he interviewed members of Carmel Boy Scout Troop 3 about camping and backpacking for his television show, Reggie Jackson's World of Sports. The Scouts got to the campsite the hard way, incidentally, on foot.

Reggie Jackson films Carmel Scouts for TV

Scouts from Carmel's Boy Scout Troop 3 recently got to meet, talk to and work with a man who's a hero to many boys in this country, and what's more, they got paid for it.

The man was Reggie Jackson, outfielder for the New York Yankees, and he was in Carmel early this month to film an hour-long program for his television series, Reggie Jackson's World of Sports.

Why Carmel? For one thing, Jackson owns property on Jacks Peak. For another, hiking in December is a lot warmer here than it is in New York.

Whatever the reason, three Scouts, Chris Bowe, John Hardin and Jeffrey Williams, and two of their leaders, Scoutmaster Art Crego and his assistant, Van Crego, left Pico Blanco Boy Scout Camp Dec. 4 for a 20-mile hike to Pfeiffer-Big Sur State Park. They were accompanied by a five-man film crew, several pack animals and three drovers.

Jackson was helicoptered to a campsite atop Mt. Manuel and spent considerable time interviewing the Scouts about the fine points of backpacking and camping. Then he helicoptered away again, leaving a $250 donation for Troop 3 in his wake.

World of Sports, unfortunately, is not televised in this area.

Enjoy your Christmas dinner at one of these restaurants

WHEN FAMILIES and friends gather to share the joys of Christmas Day, more and more choose to enjoy Christmas dinner at a fine restaurant rather than spend precious hours in the kitchen.

Special Christmas dinners will be served at the Monterey Peninsula restaurants listed below. Most recommend early reservations to avoid disappointments.

Simpson's: A scrumptious Christmas dinner offers an entree selection of roast turkey, $14.50; prime rib, $14.95; lobster tail, $18.50; roast duckling, $15.95; or filet mignon, $16.50. Dinner includes all the trimmings. For dessert, there's pumpkin, pecan or mincemeat pie, chocolate fudge cake, butterscotch sundae, ice cream or sherbet. Dinner will be served from 2-8:45 p.m. Fifth and San Carlos, Carmel. Reservations suggested: 624-1238.

The Cypress Room in The Lodge: Served from 3 to 9 p.m., the Christmas feast begins with oxtail soup and Four Seasons salad, followed by choice of roast duckling, baked ham or prime rib. Choice of desserts includes English cheese, plum pudding with Gran Marnier sauce, pumpkin pie or Christmas log. Price is $25 for adults, $12 for children 7-12 years old and $6 for children 6 years and under. In The Lodge, Pebble Beach. Reservations required: 624-3811.

SANTA CLAUS puts the finishing touches to a sign reminding people that a Bloodmobile will be stationed at the Chapter House of the Carmel Red Cross, Dolores and Eighth, Carmel from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18. Lunch will be served and transportation will be provided to those who need it. Give the gift of life this Christmas: give blood.

Camerata Singers to present final Christmas concert at Mission Sun.

The Camerata Singers, the Salinas-based group of singers from all over Monterey County, perform their final Christmas Music at the Missions concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20 at Carmel Mission Basilica.

The 16 singers and a small chamber orchestra will perform the Bach Cantata no. 63, the Mass in G by Francis Poulenc and five Renaissance motets.

The director of the Camerata Singers is Vahe Aslanian, conductor of the Hartnell Community Chorus and consultant for the Hartnell College Conservatory of Music. He has received many grants and awards during his career, and is listed in the International Who's Who in Music.

The group took its name from a group of 17th-century Florentine intellectuals who developed a new style of music, combined that with Greek drama and invented opera.

Tickets for Sunday's concert are $5.50 at the door. For more information phone 1-484-1217.

What's playing at the movies

Absence of Malice: Paul Newman and Sally Field star in the story of a big-city newspaper. Newman is a warehouse owner whose family has underworld connections, and Field is the tenacious reporter who investigates his business. Melinda Dillion plays a school-teacher. Directed by Sydney Pollack. At the Carmel Village Theater.

Blow Out: Brian DePalma's latest film — a political thriller with John Travolta and Nancy Allen. Rated R. At the Dream Theater.

Buddy, Buddy: A farce about a hit man at large in Palm Beach, which reunites four of Hollywood's most gifted talents: Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Paula Prentiss, and Klaus Kinski. Directed by Billy Wilder. At the State Three Cinemas.

Cinderella: The ageless fairy tale which Disney studios made into an animated film favorite returns to play at the Dream Theatre.

Fantastic Animation Festival: The special feature-length program contains 16 award-winning animated films selected from more than 1,000 entries. The program also includes a selection of award-winning cartoons. At the Dream Theatre.

From Mao to Mozart: Isaac Stern in China: A first-rate documentary in which the violinist is shown on tour bringing music to China. Shows master classes with talented Chinese students with Stern as a brilliant, passionate, great teacher. The response of the students is very moving. At the Dream Theatre.

Heartbeeps: Bernadette Peters and Andy Kaufman consummate their metallic passion by creating a "family." The love story of two robots. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Neighbors: John Belushi turns up again, this time as a peaceful suburban homeowner suddenly faced with the arrival of some obstreperous new neighbors, played by Dan Aykroyd and Cathy Moriarty. Lauren-Marie Taylor has the role of Belushi's daughter. Filmed on location on Staten Island. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Pennies from Heaven: Steve Martin stars in his first dramatic role, a performance that will amaze those who know him only as a comedian. Bernadette Peters co-stars in this bittersweet love story. A musical. At the Golden Bough.

Quadrophenia: A drama adapted from a rock opera written by The Who in 1972. The plot traces the movements and conflicts of the Mods and Rockers in England during the 1960s. Excellent reviews from many sources. Newsweek said, "A musical spectacle of exploding energy and blantantly sexual euphoria of violence." At the Dream Theatre.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darted, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Reds: Produced, directed by and starring Warren Beatty, who plays John Reed, the rabble-rousing American reporter. Diane Keaton stars as Louise Bryant, advocate of free love. Encompasses the events of World Ware I and the Russian Revolution. With Maureen Stapleton, Jack Nicholson, Paul Sorvino, Jerzy Kosinski and Oleg Kerensky. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Rich and Famous: Jacqueline Bisset and Candice Bergen star in a contemporary story of 20 years of friendship, from their days as college roommates to the present, who share ups and downs, professional competition, and disappointments in matters of the heart, to find a new sense of shared experience and solid loyalty. Directed by George Cukor. Rated R. At the Dream Theatre.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: A movie about two teenagers and a transvestite from another planet. Fri. and Sat. midnight show. At the Dream Theatre.

Rollover: An international thriller about intrigue in the world of high finance, starring Jane Fonda as a glamorous ex-film star seeking to control her late husband's empire — and solve his murder. Kris Kristofferson is a financial troubleshooter who joins forces with her to further both their ambitions. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

Stevie: Glenda Jackson stars in the story of Stevie Smith, the English poet who lived most of her adult life in a small suburban house with her devoted aunt (played by Mona Washbourne). Trevor Howard portrays "the man"—a somewhat awkward and pretentious narrator who talks about Stevie, recites her poems and bickers with her in a memorable scene. Rated PG. At the Dream Theatre.

Taps: Timothy Hutton and George C. Scott co-star in the powerful contemporary drama of a group of young cadets who defend the military academy that is their home when outside authorities threaten to shut it down. Rated PG. At the Center Cinema.

Time Bandits: A fantasy starring Shelly Duvall, Sean Connery, John Cleese, Katherine Helmond. Directed by Terry Gilliam. Rated PG. At the Hill Theatre.

Film review:

'Zoot Suit' is one of a kind

By LISA JENSEN

Start with an infamous Los Angeles murder trial, mix in a little dope, sex and violence, liven it up with plenty of songs, dances, forties nostalgia and a dash of sly eighties sensibility and wrap it all up with a shrewd examination of the Mexican-American psyche. What have you got?

The answer is Zoot Suit, a kaleidoscopic new film that defies description. Adapted by Luis Valdez from his own popular L.A. stage production, Zoot Suit isn't like anything you're used to seeing on a movie screen, which is part of its special appeal.

Most movies based on stage plays try to disguise their theatrical origins by "opening up" the story with more naturalistic action and on-location sets. But Zoot Suit cheerfully flaunts its staginess by means of a play-within-a-movie concept that weaves the exciting artifice of live theater beautifully into the fabric of film. (The Aquarium theater in L.A., where the film was shot, becomes another set and the audience extra characters within Valdez's presentation.) As emcee El Pachuco (Edward James Olmos) explains, the artificialty is necessary for us to appreciate the show's stylization.

Fortunately, Zoot Suit has not only stylization, but genuine style. Its centerpiece is the notorious "Sleepy Lagoon" murder case of 1942, in which a Mexican-American youth was beaten to death in a brawl at a party. Citing "gang warfare" as an excuse, the police round up (seemingly at random) a quartet of "Zoot Suiters," the media name for the flashily dressed young Chicanos who hung out on the streets and in the juke palaces of East L.A. during the forties. After a media circus trial before a grossly biased judge, the defendants are shipped off to San Quentin on the wispiest circumstantial evidence imaginable.

This story unfolds against a series of funny, often poignant vignettes about the Chicano experience, ranging from one man's relationship with his blue-collar parents to the Zooters' feud with the rowdy Anglo servicemen who cruise the barrio looking for illicit kicks. But most of the action takes place in the dreamlike dance hall, where Zooters strut their stuff and there's always a bawdy song to accompany even the most dramatic turn of the plot.

The hero of the piece is Henry Reyna (Danial Valdez, Luis' brother, who also composed most of the original music), the leader of the Zooter defendants. He's arrested just when he thinks his troubled past is behind him; he's outgrown the teenage gangs and found a job and a "nice" girl to settle down with. His parents are proud of him, his sister and goofy kid brother look up to him and he's the coolest Zooter in the barrio. He's even enlisted in the wartime U.S. Navy, but the trial interrups his pursuit of the American Dream. As El Pachuco tells him, "Your war is right here."

But the principal war in Zoot Suit isn't the one in the Pacific, or the one between whites and Chicanos on the streets of L.A. It's the one Henry wages in his head between his faith in the American system and his proud Chicano instincts, as personified by alter-ego El Pachuco. His struggle to strike a balance between the two while keeping his honor and dignity intact is at the heart of the film, which enriches the odyssey of its Everyman hero by suggesting four equally plausible endings to his story.

Luis Valdez packs a fascinating variety of thematic ideas into this unorthodox framework. The uselessness of racial stereotyping is implied in a surprising monologue by Henry's white friend and co-defendant, Tommy (Kelly Ward), and there's a subtle exploration of machismo in the ebb and flow of Henry's relationship with Alice (Tyne Daly), an idealistic young activist working on his appeal. But Valdez's finely tuned insights are never preachy, and the film steams along on an inexhaustible supply of kinetic energy, wit and brassy chutzpah.

The songs (especially the jazzy title number and the well-staged "Handball" scene), Pat Birch's choreography and Tom John's sets are all entertaining. The acting is excellent. Olmos (last seen in "shape-shifting" on a moonlit beach in Wolfen) in particular has the mesmerizing eyes of a hypnotist and the expressive physical grace of a mime. As El Pachuco, he projects arrogance and fierce pride even after he's been stripped and humiliated. It's a delicious performance in the center of this remarkable, one-of-a-kind movie.

Backgammon

Don't look confident

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You are White, on roll in the diagrammed position. Should you double?

You should, but try not to look too confident. If Black accepts this double maybe you can sell him a gold brick or the Brooklyn Bridge.

Black can get out of your board with 6-2 or 5-2; but if he does so you are a favorite to hit him. If he moves up to your 3-point before trying to get out, you will hit him or make a further point of your own. All things considered, he will get out only if he has very good luck and you have very bad luck.

Even then, you will be slightly ahead in the race, with a better distribution of men in your home board.

Your chance for a gammon is rather poor, but Black's chance to win the game is even worse.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Backgammon, (Los Angeles Times), P.O. Box 383, Wood-Ridge, N.J. 00705.

Autograph party Saturday for 'Pulse of Nature' author

Hans Holzmann is one of those people who follows his own star, no matter where it goes, no matter what the consequences.

Five years ago he was a salesman for an American electronics company in Europe, selling the chips of Silicon Valley to the Germans, the Austrians and the Hungarians. Then he became fascinated by the movements of the tides, the growth of plants, the influences of the sun and the moon, and the rhythms of the universe itself.

His interest translated into a quest that moved, interestingly enough, from the rational perspective of Germany to the non-rational vision of India, and finally to Carmel, where he lives and writes today.

"I realized the limits of the analytical approach," he says today. "You can only go so far, and then you're stuck."

The result of Holzmann's search is a book, The Pulse of Nature, which attempts to describe "the flow of energy in every living organism." While the book contains some theory, much of it is devoted to a practical guide for growing plants, fruits and vegetables according to natural rhythms.

Many old-time farmers, after all, planted their crops according to the phases of the moon. Maybe there was more than superstition to their system.

Holzmann will sign copies of The Pulse of Nature from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 19 at the Pilgrim's Way Bookshop, Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel. The book, with illustrations and a planting calendar that runs through 1984, costs $16.50.

For more information phone 625-2356.

Lunch, see films at Brown Bag Cinema today

Brown Bag Cinema, Sunset Center's series of short films and shared fellowship, presents two movies today at 1 p.m. in Leonard Carpenter Hall. The first presentation is National Parks: Promise and Challenge, an exploration of the controversy between those who would use the parks as playgrounds and those who would preserve them for future generations.

As you travel to such magical places as Yosemite, Yellowstone, Mt. McKinley and the Grand Canyon, you will be drawn into the controversy.

The second film of the afternoon is D.H. Lawrence in Taos, a chronicle of the author's visit to Taos, New Mexico in 1922.

Come just for the movies, or bring a brown bag lunch to the Chapman Room, Sunset Center, Carmel, at noon. The films are free, and so is the coffee. For more information phone 624-3996.

A puppy for Christmas?

By JUDITH A. EISNER

THERE CAN BE no doubt about it — Christmas is almost here. Most of us are in the Christmas shopping mood, and many of us are feeling more agreeable and generous to children's demands than we do at other times of the year.

The Santa Clauses about town — in department stores, in airplanes (flying into Carmel Valley airport, for example) and wherever the jolly old fellow pops up, are besieged with small fry breathlessly bursting out with their "I wants." And high on those lists will be "I want a puppy," and "I want a kitten."

Christmas and Easter find more young puppies and kittens being purchased and given as gifts than any other time of the year. Pet shops that carry larger animals often sell more at these two seasons than they do the other 10 months.

Most parents are familiar with the "I want a puppy" syndrome if the family doesn't already have a dog. If the parents don't especially want a dog or cat, they have various defenses against their children's demands. But let's face it: it's a natural and practically inevitable thing for children to want pets. It's part of the American way of life.

And at Christmastime, parents often find themselves weakening and saying, "Well, maybe we should let them have a puppy."

But should you?

We are a firm believer in pets, and a believer that children and dogs and cats (not to mention hamsters, rabbits, parakeets and goldfish) go together.

But we are also realistic, and we know that all the childish promises in the world are quickly forgotten. You cannot count on any child below teen age (and that may be optimistic) to keep his most earnest promise and take complete, adequate care of a pet.

A CHILD OF SIX years or older can certainly do much in the way of taking care of a pet, as long as his parents are there to remind him (day in and day out), oversee and assist.

A six-year-old can mix a dog or cat's dinner, provide clean water and do simple grooming. But he cannot always be trusted to control a large dog on a leash, to pick up after it or to train it.

And unless there's a responsible adult around to remind, "Did you feed Fido today? Did you change his water?" chances are the dog will go unwatered and unfed.

Before you capitulate to your child's desires and agree to bring home a new puppy, understand that it's going to be an adult responsibility for a long time.

Children cannot housebreak a puppy, if only because they go off to school each morning and cannot take it out 25 times a day. Mother must housebreak the puppy.

Children are not able to do serious training because they lack the strength, stature and firmness to control a dog.

Children cannot market for the dog's supplies, assess its health and take it to the vet, protect it from danger or prevent unwanted breeding.

Mothers do all that. Fathers sometimes help, but by and large, the brunt of pet-ownership falls on mother.

It's easy to give in; it's all-too-easy to find a puppy and bring it home; it's easy to enjoy and love the puppy. But it often gets very tedious caring for it day in and day out.

IN ORDER FOR a puppy to grow into a satisfactory house pet, child's playmate and adult companion, it requires a certain amount of attention.

As an obvious first, a satisfactory pet is a healthy, happy animal. Although some people derive a great deal of satisfaction from being a perpetual nurse to their pets, most of us don't have the time or inclination to cope with a chronically ill animal.

Assuming that a new pet comes from sound, healthy stock and is, hopefully, free of inherited weaknesses, you can maintain him in top-notch shape through a sensible regimen of sound diet, exercise and good preventive veterinary care (worming, shots and the like).

That part is easily accomplished; your local pet shop and veterinarian will be glad to help you iron out any problems of feeding or routine care.

But as any mother will tell you, her idea of a satisfactory pet is not a muddy, unkempt, burr-tangled mess who tracks up her clean floors and sheds tufts of hair all over the upholstery. Besides, who wants the kids hugging such a dirty thing?

So there's grooming to be considered, as well as preventive "kenneling." Here, in relatively countrified areas, one cannot let a dog run loose (it's against the law!) and expect him to remain spic and span. Your new puppy must have an outdoor area (or be exercised on a leash) that not only protects him from the obvious dangers of autos and other dogs, but that also confines his roamings.

There's a half-joke among dog breeders about the number of people who've bought a puppy and then gone out to buy a house with a fenced yard to keep it in...

The time, expense and energy that a new puppy demands are probably incalculable. You certainly cannot expect your children to meet these demands. It's up to you.

But, on the other hand, the joys of having a good dog, and the lessons to be learned from him — lessons in love, faithfulness, responsibility — can more than repay the debt.

Just be aware that "a puppy for Christmas" is a long-term investment and an involvement for years to come.

JEAN JANSEM'S Masquerade (left) combines the quality of not-quite-real characters with a wonderful delicacy of expression. At right, Bernard Buffet's Bouquet points in all directions, his famous spiky signature as much a part of the painting as the flowers.

The two French painters, together with Michel de Gallard, will have a three-man show at Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel in February. Samples of their work are displayed in the Gallery now.

Paintings by three French artists on view at Zantman Galleries

Zantman Art Galleries, Sixth and Mission, Carmel, will present a February show of three French artists — world-famous Bernard Buffet, Jean Jansem and Michel de Gallard.

As a Christmas special, the gallery is showing a preview of these paintings. A work by Buffet is on display in the gallery now, along with a few exquisite Jansems and some of de Gallard's big earth-tone landscapes.

Michel de Gallard has been exhibited at the Gallery for many years, and is said to be a favorite artist of the Zantmans, who select several of his paintings for exhibition on their periodic trips to Europe.

Bernard Buffet is a favorite around the world, but his work is specially loved by the Japanese, who have erected a majestic Bernard Buffet Museum at the foot of Mount Fuji. His angular, dashing style is immediately recognizable, and universally admired.

Jean Jansem has become on of the most noted painters of Europe. He travels extensively in Europe, the United States and Mexico, finding his models in ports and markets, on the fields and in the streets, in churches and theaters. He makes sketches while traveling and paints from these sketches in his studio in Paris.

All of the paintings for the February exhibit are now at the gallery, and may be viewed on request, but only a few are on display. For more information phone 624-8314.

Library offers special 'Christmas Story Time'

Pre-school children from two to six are invited to Christmas Story Time at Harrison Memorial Library, Ocean and Lincoln, Carmel, three times this holiday season.

Programs are from 10 to 10:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 18, Tuesday, Dec. 22 and Tuesday, Dec. 29. They will include not only stories, but puppets, songs and crafts as well.

On Wednesday, Dec. 23, children from the second to the sixth grade are invited to make simple Christmas tree ornaments from 2 to 3 p.m.

For more information phone Linda Geroy at 624-4629.

Salon donates hair styling to seniors

Totally You Beauty Salon in Carmel Center, Highway 1 and Rio road, will give Carmel's senior community a Christmas present this year.

On Monday, Dec. 21, between 1 and 4 p.m., the salon's five hairdressers will donate their time in order to shampoo, cut and set the hair of about 20 ladies from the Carmel Foundation. The hairdressers, of course, will not be available to the public during those hours, but the salon's manicurist, pedicurist, facialist and masseuse will do business as usual. Refreshments will be served in a party atmosphere.

For more information phone 624-1557.

DALI

A RETROSPECTIVE EXHIBIT

A rare opportunity to view the largest collection of Dali original paintings and lithographs to be shown on the West coast. This show is part of a world tour collection that will be opening in the Museum of Art in Tokyo, Japan and continuing on to the major art centers through out the world.

WHAT WAS IT about those dark, leonine looks that made Clark Gable the idol of millions of women around the world? Myrna Loy, left, and Jean Harlow were clearly not immune. They are three of nearly 50 movie stars of the '30s and '40s who are featured in The Art of Hollywood Studio Photography, an exhibit that runs from Dec. 18 to Jan. 14 at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. The show starts with a free and public reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18.

Peninsula film society offers showing of classic movies

The Monterey Peninsula Film Society has a magnificent Christmas present for area viewers in David Lean's production of Great Expectations, one of Charles Dickens' finest novels.

Lean, who made Brief Encounter, Lawrence of Arabia and Dr. Zhivago, put together a brilliant British cast for this 1947 movie, including John Mills, Alec Guiness, Valerie Hobson and Jean Simmons.

The film, which won three Academy Awards, tells the story of young Pip, an orphan who finds a mysterious benefactor and comes to London in search of his future. He has, people keep telling him, great expectations.

The movie be shown once only at 8:15 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 23.

On Friday and Saturday, Dec. 18 and 19, the Film Society presents Get Out Your Handkerchiefs, a French farce in which a husband seeks to cheer up his wife by finding her a lover. According to the logic of farce, no good deed goes unpunished in this entertaining, amusing film which begins at 8:15 p.m.

Both Great Expectations and Get Out Your Handkerchiefs are $3 general admission and $2.50 for members of the film society. They will be shown in the Morse Auditorium, 425 Van Buren, Monterey. For more information phone 659-4795.

Give of yourself this Christmas

Among the other Christmas gifts you plan to give this year, you might consider giving something of yourself.

Holiday Project, a volunteer organization that specializes in helping the sick, the lonely, the aged and the friendless, plans to visit many different institutions in Monterey County Christmas Day to show the people in them they aren't forgotten.

Last year, 250 Holiday Project volunteers visited 900 people in 19 different facilities on Christmas Day. This year, 500 volunteers are requested. Holiday Project will provide gifts for those visited.

Someone has to wrap the gifts, however, and that is the occasion for a Christmas gift wrapping session from noon to 8 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20 at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove.

Holiday Project began seven years ago in San Francisco and now is a nationwide alliance with more than 200,000 members. The Monterey Committee is at 423 Alvarado St., Monterey. Those interested either in wrapping packages Dec. 20 or visiting Christmas Day should phone 646-1233.

Philadelphia party January 1

Former Philadelphians and friends of Philadelphia are invited to the Third Annual Philadelphia Mummers' Party on New Year's Day.

The party is scheduled from 1 to 4 p.m. at the foot of 13th street at Carmel Beach.

Bring Philadelphia foods and beverages to share as the assembled Mummers reminisce about the City of Brotherly Love.

For more information phone Harriet Brodsky at 646-9551.

P G Art Center exhibits photos of Hollywood stars

Nearly 50 of them are there, the great Hollywood stars — stars of such magnitude that they shine brightly in our imaginations from distances of 40 and 50 years.

Clark Gable is there, along with Jean Harlow, Myrna Loy, Gary Cooper and Wallace Beery. Greta Garbo is there, and Fredric March. And there are also scenes from the great movies, the kind they don't make like that any more — The Wizard of Oz, Gone with the Wind, The Good Earth.

Where are they? At the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove, where an exhibit titled The Art of Hollywood Studio Photography in the 1930s and early 1940s will open Friday, Dec. 18 with a reception from 7 to 9 p.m. The show runs through Jan. 14.

The show is from the Monterey Peninsula College collection, and includes work of studio photographers Clarence Bull, Ernest Bachrach, George Hurrell, Lazlo Willinger and others.

The prints for the show were cleaned, mounted and matted by Frank Keillor, local photographer and part-time instructor at MPC. Chase Weaver, archivist and part-time MPC instructor, planned the show.

The Art Center is open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. The show is free. For more information phone 375-2208.

LINDA McJUNKIN POSES with one of her stained glass works, The Modern Madonna. McJunkin's art will be on display at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, from Friday, Dec. 18 through Jan. 14. There will be a reception at the Art Center from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday.

Stained glass exhibit opens

The stained glass art of Monterey designer Linda McJunkin will be exhibited in the E.H. Dyke Gallery of the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., from Friday, Dec. 18 through Jan. 14. A reception will be held at the Art Center from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday.

A native San Franciscan, McJunkin has departed from the traditional uses of stained glass by minimizing line to suggest motion and integrating dream imagery and mosaic techniques to convey personal statements through her glass work.

McJunkin has traveled through Europe and the United States, and received training at the University of California and UCLA. Her work is in many private collections.

The Art Center is open from 11 to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday. For more information phone 375-2208.

Sierra Club will lead two hikes

The Sierra Club is offering two scenic hikes this weekend, recommended for the sound of wind and limb.

The first, described as strenuous, is an eight-mile round-trip hike to Devil's Peak that includes a devilish 2,100-foot climb. Once there, however, hikers will be rewarded with a panoramic view from the ocean to the Ventana peaks.

Meet at Brinton's Hardware in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 19. Bring food, water, boots and $2 for the 23-mile ride to the trail head. For more information phone Cris Talley at 659-2887.

Sunday's hike, in Carmel Valley's Garland Ranch Regional Park, will cover eight to 10 miles depending on weather and trail conditions. Hikers will leave the Visitors' Center at the park at 9:30 a.m. bearing lunch, water and wearing good walking shoes. For more information phone Gordon Williams at 372-6374.

CHS sports schedule

Carmel High School athletes face a full schedule this week prior to taking a few days off for the Christmas holidays.

The boys' varsity basketball team will host the Carmel Invitational Tournament tonight through Saturday in the Padre gym. Tipoff time for Carmel is set for 8:30 p.m. Other times will be announced.

Meanwhile, the JV boys will play in the Salinas JV Tournament today and Friday and the freshman will travel to Salinas for a 4:30 p.m. contest.

The girls will travel to Seaside Dec. 21 for a 1 p.m. game against the Spartans.

For more information, telephone 624-1821.

CV Library offers films Friday

A young boy finds a red balloon and adventure in The Red Balloon, a movie that will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18 at the Carmel Valley Library, 65 W. Carmel Valley Rd. in the Buckeye Building, Carmel Valley Village.

Film shorts of Charlie Chaplin and Betty Boop will round out the program, which costs $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Refreshments will be available.

Immunizations available Thursdays

The Monterey County Health Department has announced a variety of inoculation clinics, some free, some for fee.

An immunization clinic for children two months or older will be held from 8:15 to 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 24 and 31. Tetanus-diphtheria boosters are available for adults who have not had one within the past 10 years. Both services are free.

The clinic also offers cholera immunizations, smallpox waivers, yellow fever immunization and tuberculosis skin testing, all for a fee. Treatment is also offered for veneral disease and other ailments.

The clinic is at 1281 Broadway, Seaside. For more information phone 899-4271.

ARE you having trouble finding a good Realtor?

We'd like to make an obvious suggestion—give us a call. In the recent down market, we've spent our time working harder and better; learning, not moaning.

NEW LISTING, Carmel Valley, with room to roam on over an acre of sunshine, hot tub off master suite, three bedrooms plus den or fourth bedroom, $370,000.

NEW LISTING south of Ocean Avenue, an immaculate and warm two-bedroom suite home, with private California-formal garden and some owner financing. $325,000

NEW LISTING, on Carmel Point. Concert Hall Loft for for your stereo system, three bedrooms + 2½ baths, two separate heating systems, complete Jennair kitchen. $390,000.

NEW LISTING Pebble Beach family home on large lot. Warm & friendly, 3-bedroom, 2-bath, home, centrally located for convenience. $237,000.

OAKHURST, some few miles north of Yosemite, may be the ultimate getaway. Northeast of Oakhurst, in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada mountains, where deer and mountain lions still play, is a 100-acre parcel with its own lake stocked with fish, an A-frame cabin, and owner financing at $395,000.

REAL PRIVACY is possible in this two-bedroom, two-bath home in Carmel Woods. On a 1/4 acre of grounds left natural for privacy and appropriately manicured for civilization, there is room for you. The master bedroom has its own sitting room, the kitchen has been so designed that it is fun to work in and easy to clean and the sun sets over the ocean view. $329,000. TERMS.

CARMEL LIVING requires a patio, and in this two-bedroom suite home there is easy access from every room to the outside rich in oaks & weathered bricks. Very private, very warm and richly decorated. Now $265,000.

IF YOU JUST bought a home and are wondering how to find a good tenant, call our Property Management Department at 624-2930. We offer complete long & short-term rental management.

TWO CONDOS DOWNTOWN

Both are 1 bedroom, 1 bath, and both are in the middle of downtown Carmel, both have fireplaces, but —

1. Just reduced to $195,000, with a view of the ocean & Point Lobos.
2. Close to street level for easy walk, $197,000.

BIG SUR IS SPECIAL

Ask anyone who lives there. We present here three ways to move to Big Sur and its trees, seclusion and privacy.

1. Near Pfeiffer Beach, a fixer-upper with ample water, a greenhouse, and a new price of $180,000. The owner invites offers.
2. 1.18 acres in Palo Colorado Canyon as a building site. Trees, the music of Rocky Creek, and the possibility of owner financing for $51,500.
3. A hand-crafted home near the Sur Coast. Large bedroom upstairs with redwood shower/sauna, copper sinks, redwood breakfast bar in the living room/dining room. Oak floors, wood heat, flexible financing. The ultimate in intimate, affordable seclusion at $149,500. Call main office or 667-2406.
4. NEW LISTING in Garrapata Canyon, live with the hobbits among tall redwoods along the creek. Excellent financing at an affordable price — $105,000. Call main office or 667-2406.

EXCITEMENT IS SOMETHING you seldom find in a home. Here it is. Marble entry, pine tree through the dining room roof, seven-pool waterfall, two bedroom suites upstairs and a separate studio apartment downstairs, and the owners will finance at $259,000.

REAL ESTATE

Opportunity Knocks — Three Times!

Sharp reductions on these 3 outstanding properties make each one a truly remarkable value.

Near Carmel Point — 5 Bedrooms

At Monte Verde and 16th on a corner lot. Most attractive home with views of mountains and mouth of the Valley, short walk to the beach. Big living room with broad picture windows, dining room, splendid kitchen with all appliances, laundry room, 2 baths, and FIVE bedrooms! All are large, 3 off central corridor, 2 in the north wing; several with built-in shelves, cabinets and work spaces. Fully fenced, with patio and play yard. Owner will accept 20% down and carry balance for qualified buyer. Reduced from $259,500 to $229,500.

A 33-foot pool — inside!

The house: 3,400 square feet. The location: on Ryan Place just off Carmel Knolls Drive. The views: you're high, so you see far up the Valley and far south to the mountains. The space: every room is large — 21 x 15 sunken living room, 20x13 dining room, 4 big bedrooms, front-facing kitchen fully equipped, 2¼ baths, laundry and 44x24 pool room. Conveniences: 3 large decks, huge parking plaza, golf less than a mile away, shopping even closer. A sky-high country club of your own, reduced from $295,000 to $269,000. Large (approx. $150,000) 1st mortgage is assumable at remarkably reasonable rate; sizeable 2nd is available.

Aerie up above Mid-Valley

It's almost at the top of Tierra Grande, at the corner of Telerana Way. High, with magnificent views east, south and west. On more than an acre, nicely landscaped close-in, natural down the slopes. Two generous sized bedrooms, a superb cedar-paneled den with fireplace, 3 baths, 25-foot living room with another fireplace, dining room, kitchen, breakfast room, atrium and protected sundeck. An entirely charming home, beautifully maintained, at the top of a sensational setting. Just reduced from $239,500 to $229,500, and hard to match at that price. Very attractive financing is available.

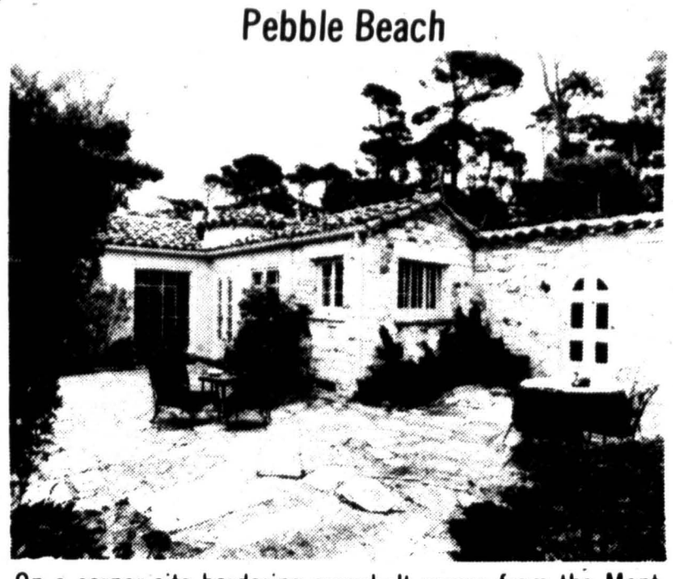
Pebble Beach

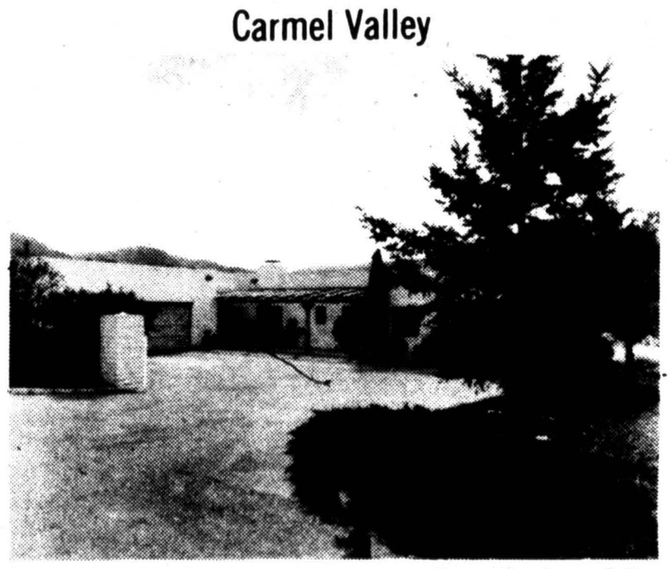


On a corner site bordering greenbelt across from the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Shore Course close to both the clubhouse and ocean are this tile-roofed, Spanish, stucco and stone home and two guest houses sheltering patios, one with a hot tub. The house, enhanced with beamed ceilings, carpeted and tile floors, paneling and many custom-crafted built-ins, has a living room with fireplace and bar; dining room; library; breakfast room and butler's pantry off a charmingly modernized kitchen; also two bedroom and bath suites. One cottage has two rooms and bath, the other one room and bath. A double garage, also low-care landsscaping, add to attractiveness of this pleasing property. $365,000.

Big Sur Coast

Atop Garrapata Ridge, on a ten-acre site, this shake-roofed redwood home featuring fine craftsmanship of native materials has miles of magnificent ocean and coastline view including Rocky Point below. Outside enjoyment of this panorama is provided by five decks and two stone patios, one with a hot tub, the other with a barbecue. Pleasing placement of glass; beamed wood ceilings; pine plank, brick and tile floors; paneling; handcrafted cabinetry and tilework enhance the interior containing living/dining area with a stone fireplace; loft study; compact kitchen with electric appliances; bedroom; bathroom with footed tub in a glassed alcove; a laundry facility; also many built-ins. $295,000.

Carmel Valley



Set back from the street on an acre site with view of the Santa Lucia Mountains, this masonry block home with peeled logs enhancing both the pillared entrance porch and a side patio has a pueblo ambience further increased by the flow of interior space centered by a massive masonry fireplace with hearths facing living room, dining room and capacious kitchen. A south-facing, partially covered, pillared lanai adds to this southwest atmosphere. Also included in living space are a study; entry with powder room; laundry; luxurious and spacious master suite; two more bedroom and bath suites, one with outside entrance, too. A workroom off the drivethrough double garage with two electric door controls adds to the livableness of this Mid-Valley home. $350,000.
